MPs Voice Uranium Fears

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition MPs, expressing concern about reports of 200 tons of uranium disappearing in Europe in 1963, called Monday for a moratorium on uranium and nuclear reactor sales and emergency international inspection of nuclear facilities of Canada's customers.

At the same time James Gillies (PC—Toronto Don Valley) expressed concern about Canadian control, or lack of it, over a reactor sold years ago to Taiwan, an island with which Canada now has no relations.

The reactor is similar to the Canadian-supplied one used by India to produce plutonoium for a 1974 atomic explosion.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson fielded questions on the matter in the Commons from Gillies, Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) and Bill Jarvis (PC—Perth Wilmot).

He said if he finds that special international inspection by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) is needed, he will call for it.

Meanwhile, he told reporters preliminary investigation shows that none of the missing uranium was Canadian. Other government officials said it is suspected the uranium came from South Africa.

NEWS BRIEFS

'Neutral' Ruling

Rail Plan Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian Transport Commission plan for a trimmed back transcontinental rail service faces changes before it comes into being, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Monday. See story on Page 35.

Team Defects

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Twenty-seven Poles in Denmark for a World Cup soccer match appealed today for political asylum in West Germany.

Hijacker Seized

ROME (Reuter) — A Spanish pilot overpowered a knife-wielding Libyan who seized an Iberian airliner Monday at Rome's Fiumicino Arport and tried to hijack it to Madrid, airport officials reported.

120 Children Hurt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A cluster of hydrogen-filled balloons burst into flames Monday at a ceremony attended by President Jose Lopez Portillo and 120 children were injured. Police said some were burned and others trampled in the panic. Five children were in critical condition.

Students Barred

LOS ANGELES (AP) — School officials in Los Angeles County barred thousands of students from class Monday because they had not received measles vaccinations. Health officals say 10-day rubella measles has reached epidemic proportions in Los Angeles County, with 2,300 cases reported.

Amin Alert

Woman New Gov't Watchdog

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The deputy auditor-general of New Brunswick has been recommended as B.C.'s first auditor-general, an independent watchdog of the province's finances.

Erma Morrison, 62, has the unanimous recommendation of the all-party legislative committee set up last year to choose the auditor-general but the appointment must be approved by the legislature when it sits again.

She will be paid $52,000 a year, the same salary as a B.C. Supreme Court judge, and is appointed for a six-year term starting Sept. 1.

The Auditor-General Act, passed in June, 1976, gives Morrison wide powers to act as a critic of government financial policies.

The auditor-general has access to all government financial records, including those Crown corporations and any company of which the government owns more than 50 per cent.

Besides the annual report, the auditor-general can report to the legislature at any time "on a matter of primary importance or urgency."

The office of the auditor-general is designed to be independent from partisan politics and the six-year term is intended to remove the office from the effect of general elections.

Morrison was selected from a total of 56 applicants and was unanimously chosen from a short list of five finalists.

She is both a chartered accountant and a certified internal auditor.

She has been in the public service of New Brunswick since 1965 and has been deputy auditor-general since 1975.

Outlaw Officer Strike, Ferry Corp. Asks LRB

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. Ferry Corp. has moved to prevent any interruption of service by asking the provincial Labor Relations Board to declare a strike vote by ferry officers illegal.

The officers served 72-hour strike notice Monday and are poised to strike at 10 a.m. Thursday, cutting off service between Vancouver Island and the Mainland.

The corporation said in a news release Monday it will ask the LRB to declare the strike vote illegal as well as any action which takes place as a result of the vote.

The legality of the officers' strike will be discussed at a meeting Wednesday attended by representatives of the board, the ferry corporation and the B.C. Government Employees Union.

LRB chairman Paul Weiler said today discussion at the meeting will not centre only on the legality but will include all the outstanding issues in dispute between the two parties.

He said efforts will be made to point out the duty of both parties to bargain as well as the alternatives to bargaining which would include a strike.

Weiler said the meeting had been arranged prior to the release of the strike vote results on Friday. The officers voted 89 per cent to walk out.

As far as the LRB's opinion of the legality of the officer's strike vote following a recent certification decision by the Board, Weiler said the board members had analysed the matter but would await comments by the parties involved.

PORTABLE SECURITY U.S.-CANADA GOAL

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Health Minister Marc Lalonde said today he hopes to get U.S. agreement this year for a plan that would allow Canadian and U.S. citizens to carry various social security benefits with them when they move from one country to the other.

He told a news conference that there was a "quite positive" U.S. response to the idea which he discussed with Joseph Califano, his U.S. counterpart.

There were 300,000 Canadians and Americans who have earned social security benefits in both countries who would be affected by such arrangements, Lalonde said.

He had discussed the possibility of similar agreements during visits to Britain and France.

The benefits that could in effect be carried from one country to the other might include old-age pensions, disability payments, unemployment insurance benefits and workers' compensation.

Bomber Slams Houses, Five People Killed

HUNTINGDON, England (UPI) — A Royal Air Force Canberra plane crashed into a row of eight houses in the nearby village of Hartford today, setting them on fire and killing five persons, three of them young children. The crippled plane narrowly missed a crowded school.

At least five other persons were injured, including one child, a hospital spokesman said.

An air force spokesman said two crewmen and three infants died in the crash of the Canberra — a bomber converted into a photo-reconnaissance plane.

The plane crashed two miles short of its airfield 60 miles north of London.

Witnesses said the pilot appeared desperately trying to steer clear of a school only 50 yards from the crash site.

LOW-CALIBRE DENTISTRY

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—To end the tormenting pain of a toothache, an Uruguayan farmer shot away the tooth with a .22-calibre pistol.

Hospital officials in Salto, 300 miles northwest of Montevideo, said Ernesto Erosa, 29, was recovering from the gunshot that not only demolished his tooth but also his gums, his lower lip, and jaw.

Civil Servants' Pay Hiked 2.5%

British Columbia's 33,000 unionized civil servants have received a 2.59 per cent cost-of-living increase.

In an order-in-council released Monday, the government said the increase is to be added to the base salary of Feb. 1, 1977 for every classification covered by its collective agreement with the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

WEATHER

Tonight: Clear
Wednesday: Rain

All You See Is Grey . . .

By JOHN TWIGG
Canadian Press

REGINA — When you look to the horizon in all directions all you see is grey.

During the day the sunlight is so diffused it appears to glow, and it constantly feels like rain is imminent.

But when you look straight up, all you see is blue sky.

The cause is a combination of strong winds and no rain, and it becomes particularly bad when the ground is warm in contrast to a cold air mass moving overhead.

Bob Jacobs of the Regina weather office explained that those conditions combined on the weekend to "boil up" the air, sending dust clouds as high as 10,000 feet according to airline pilots.

Wind speeds then were up to 80 kilometres per hour (about 50 mph) and Monday at noon they were reported up to 59 kph.

They reduced visibility across the southern grain belt (roughly from Saskatoon south) to about one mile in blowing dust, with some communities such as Moose Jaw having visibility reduced to only three-quarters of a mile.

There has been virtually no precipitation since August, making it the driest winter since 1902, and virtually no snow run-off is creating water supply problems for many Prairie communities.

The conditions are reminding veteran farmers of the Dirty Thirties, when continued dryness reduced the great plains to a giant dust-bowl.

But above average rainfall in recent years has prevented dust storms and soil drifting, and 1962 was the last year when there was a serious dust problem.

The province's population has changed considerably since then and for many of the newcomers the dust storms are an eerie novelty that have become the main topic of conversation.

But people who have been here for a while are not worried.

"It's an amazing country," says Dick Nakamura, who has been here 21 years.

"One thing I've learned is that we could have all the makings of a serious drought and then in the next two weeks it could rain and there'd be no more problem."

Nakamura should know. He's the spokesman for the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration, the agency created in response to the calamity of the Thirties dust bowl.

Other farm experts point out that there has never yet been a crop failure in the early spring, but government agencies are taking more than the usual precautions.

Bill Harringer, manager of program implementation for the Department of Regional Economic Expansion, said meetings have been taking place with various departments of the three Prairie governments to discuss possible measures.

These include re-instating the deep well program last used in 1962 to find water at depths greater than 100 feet, and expanding irrigation projects.

The Saskatchewan government for the last month has been helping farmers fill their dug-outs by supplying the equipment to pump water from distances up to several miles.

The crop situation so far is not serious because there is adequate moisture in summer-fallow fields (those not used last season to grow a crop).

And the loss of top soil has not yet become a widespread problem.

Ulster Strike Plan Fizzles

BELFAST (AP) — Workers poured into Northern Ireland's factories, shops and offices today in defiance of a general strike called by militant Protestants in an attempt to force the British army to open an offensive against the Irish Republican Army.

The Belfast Telegraph estimated at mid-morning that 80 to 90 per cent of Belfast's workers were on the job, and the turnout was nearly 100 per cent in Londonderry, which has a large Roman Catholic population. But it said about 60 per cent of the workers heeded the strike call in some mostly Protestant areas.

Strikers and their supporters shared the streets of Belfast with strengthened police forces on the lookout for any attempt to intimidate the workers. Although there was no interference with motorists and pedestrians going to work, threats were reported.

"We are getting reports of intimidation and calls for help," reported Ciaran McKeown, an official of the Peace People campaign. "Fear is spreading very rapidly, particularly among wives with children who have been threatened if their husbands do not heed the strike call."

A police spokesman said "many persons" have telephoned police to complain about intimidation. "So far we have not been able to apprehend anyone in connection with these complaints," he said.

Firebombs exploded in downtown Belfast stores early today, causing no casualties, and another bomb ripped up a section of track on the Belfast-Bangor rail line. Security officials said they do not know whether the bombs were the work of Protestant extremists or the IRA.

WOMAN KILLED BY HIT-RUN

An unidentified woman is dead and a seven-year-old boy unconscious after separate hit-and-run accidents in Greater Victoria Monday.

Victoria police said the woman — a native Indian between 30 and 40 — was struck by a car at Johnson and Broad at 11:05 p.m.

She carried no identification and died in Victoria General Hospital three hours later.

Colwood RCMP said Danny Jones, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jones, of 888A Attree, was hit by a pickup truck in the 2800-block Jacklin about 12:30 p.m.

The boy was taken to Victoria General where he is unconscious and in fair condition.

City police said the woman was walking across Johnson at a crosswalk. One vehicle had stopped to let her pass when another auto braked but skidded into her.

Witnesses describe the car as a dark blue or black Mercury or Meteor, either a 1964 or 1965 model. It is believed to have been driven by a male.

The woman, who wore glasses, was dressed in brown shoes, purple socks, a green patterned shirt, a white sweater blouse, blue jeans and a light blue ski jacket.

Anyone who saw the woman earlier in the evening or who witnessed the accident is asked to contact city police at 384-4111.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said the Jones boy was returning to Langford elementary after his lunch break when he saw two dogs fighting.

The boy apparently decided to separate the dogs and got part way across when he was struck by the truck.

Three children aged 5, 7 and 8 saw the accident and told police the truck was a blue pickup with a white canopy or camper on the back.

The boy was tossed through the air and ended up on the sidewalk. Police found the boy's shoes in the middle of the road about 70 feet from where he landed.

Misinterpreted, Says Davis

Energy Minister Jack Davis said Monday remarks he made during a February meeting with Washington State officials on the location of an oil port have been misinterpreted.

The minister earlier in the day said he did not remember making the controversial statement attributed to him in a transcript of the day-long meeting, but said later he had misunderstood reporters' questions at the time of the original interview.

Davis was quoted in the transcript of the meeting as saying if he were an oil company he would prefer an oil port at Kitimat to the Puget Sound area, because Kitimat is sparsely populated with only a few Indian bands and the Puget Sound is highly developed with valuable properties.

The minister said he was pointing out the obvious to the oil companies—that the measurable damage from an oil spill is much greater in the Puget Sound than in Kitimat.

"But that was not at all to say that the damage up north was unimportant," he said.

"I certainly wasn't saying to heck with the Indians.

"What I was saying is that if we have an oil spill way off somewhere but close to the most important herring spawning grounds, those environmental values are difficult to express in dollar terms."

Davis said that in an area such as the Puget Sound, residents could tote up the cost of an oil spill by how much it affects tourist or recreational business, he said.

The minister said he was trying to tell the oil companies that because the dollar value of the environmental concerns in the north were difficult to add up "that's really where the government has to be concerned and to move in.

"There is no one there (in the Kitimat-Douglas Channel area) to quantify the environmental damage," Davis said, because there are only a few locations along the channel where there are Indian bands.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

British Columbia is developing technology that will enable some cities to obtain their total electricity supply by burning waste wood, B.C. Council of Forest Industries president Don Lanskail said today.

"There is enough waste wood in the area to supply all the electrical needs of Prince George, for example," he said.

"Cities on Vancouver Island also could benefit from this type of development."

Lanskail was elaborating on an announcement by provincial Transport Minister Jack Davis that B.C. will discuss energy developments in the forest industry with the National Energy Board next week.

Davis said energy will soon come from waste wood that at present is being dumped into rivers.

Lanskail said programs to convert waste wood to energy have a top priority in 1977 for the forest industry in British Columbia.

"We have made some progress already and I am very excited about the potential. What we have to do now is bring the costs in line so the many small sawmills across the province can afford this type of conversion."

Waste wood could be used for a number of projects but mainly to burn in thermal plants creating electricity. The idea is not new but, with encouragement and possible funding from Ottawa, the pace of development will be increased.

"I would expect to see a widespread conversion to waste wood burners within a decade," Lanskail said.

"This would not put B.C. Hydro out of business. It would simply provide alternative sources of electricity and put waste products to constructive use."

Already under way is a $13 million steam power boiler at the British Columbia Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton. When completed in mid-1978, the boiler will burn 250,000 units of waste wood, which is currently being disposed of as land fill and is regarded as a potential pollution problem.

The wood waste will replace 420,000 barrels of oil, which is more than half the oil currently being used to produce steam from the Crofton mill. Conservation of petroleum resources is a major aim of the joint B.C.-Ottawa program.

The council is studying similar developments in Oregon.

The waste-wood project is one of a number of conservation programs being studied by B.C. Energy Commission along with B.C. Hydro.

Hydro also is developing a program to encourage the upgrading of insulation in homes and buildings.

Gas Pipeline Ruling 'Essentially Neutral'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Monday's two-two split decision of the U.S. Federal Power Commission on two competing cross-Canada northern gas pipelines was termed as an "essentially neutral" report to President Jimmy Carter, that should allow Canada to decide what is in its best interest "with no particular pressure" from any source in the United States, according to Federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie.

The recommendations change "very significantly" the status, at least in the United States, of the so-called Al-Can Highway cross-Canada gas pipeline project, Gillespie added.

"Al-Can has always been a major contender as far as Canada is concerned," even though an initial report by a law judge to the U.S. federal Power Commission "threw cold water" on the project in the U.S. earlier this year, he said.

The FPC's four members were unanimous in recommending a cross-Canada route for the estimated 22.5 trillion cubic feet of gas of Alaska's Prudhoe Bay field.

But Chairman Richard Dunham and Commissioner James Watt wanted the route proposed by Alcan Pipeline Co. and Commissioners John Holloman and Don Smith recommended the route proposed by Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co.

None voted for the El Paso Alaska route, through Alaska and by tanker to the U.S. West Coast.

Gillespie said that while "discussions" between Canada and the U.S. have in effect already started and will continue through to a hoped for parallel decision in both countries by Sept. 1, actual "negotiations" cannot start until at least the final report of the National Energy Board is before the Canadian government.

The hearings are being rushed through so that they end late this month and so that a report can be presented to cabinet by early summer, perhaps even before July 1.

But a legal challenge launched by environmental and other public interest groups, questioning whether the NEB even has jurisdiction over the pipeline issue and suggesting it to be turned over to the courts, could upset the timetable.

In a related development, the federal government has agreed to provide supplementary financing for public interest groups participating in the up-coming federal public inquiry into the socio-economic impact of the proposed deep sea oil port at Kitimat, B.C., for a cross-Canada crude oil pipeline.

The public inquiry, which will also examine the broader implications of west coast oil shipments, is scheduled to start later this month and to be completed by the end of 1977 — the period during which federal financial assistance would also be provided.

A spokesman for the Kitimat Oil Port Inquiry said that Commissioner Andrew Thompson himself will determine how much money should be requested from Ottawa, based on how well public interest group applicants meet a set of criteria for funding set out by the inquiry and already approved by Ottawa.

One of the criteria is that coalitions of interest groups representing a broader interest is to be encouraged.

Formal public interest groups participating in the now-completed Berger Inquiry into the northern impact of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline received financial assistance from the federal government, though sometimes not without some pushing by Mr. Justice Thomas Berger.

Bhutto Foes Seek China Aid

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan — Some 3,000 Chinese road builders in the remote mountains of Pakistan's Northwest Frontier province have been surrounded by armed tribesmen seeking China's intervention to force the resignation of Prime Minister Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto, an informed Pakistani source said Monday.

About 8,000 tribesmen have ringed the unarmed Chinese workers in 34 camps along the so-called "Silk Route" road the Peking government is building between the Northwest Frontier province and China's Singiang province, said the source, who has access to Pakistan army intelligence reports.

Pakistan military officials could not be reached for comment on the reports.

Cyclamate Ban an Error

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The artificial sweetener cyclamates should never have been banned as a cancer-causing agent in 1969, Canadian health department scientists have finally admitted.

"If we knew in 1969 what we know today, we would never have banned cyclamates," Dr. W. P. McKinley, head of Canada's foods directorate in the federal health department, says in a U.S. medical journal.

Ironically for all concerned, when cyclamates were banned eight years ago, they were replaced as the king of artificial sweeteners in goods from soft drinks to special foods for diabetics by saccharin, the sweetener now being banned for most uses in Canada and the U.S.

What changed it all in less than a decade?

Well, what the Canadian scientists know now is that it was the saccharin in an artificial sweetener mixture called "sucaryl" that caused the bladder tumors in experimental animals, not the cyclamates in that same mixture.

Sucaryl can still be purchased in drugstores in Canada, for private use as an artificial sweetener additive to food and drinks prepared at home.

More recent experiments have also revealed that the chemical reaction involving cyclamates that had been though to be responsible for the bladder cancer in rats in fact seems to be responsible for testicular atrophy in the rats, which results in shrunken male testicles.

The reaction in question is the conversion by bacteria in the human gut of cyclamates to cyclohexylamine, a more potent chemical.

One of the many complicating factors is that all people don't convert cyclamates to cyclohexylamine at the same rate, and therefore aren't as susceptible to any long-term effects. It depends on the type of bacteria inside the digestive tract, according to health department experts.

There is now a good chance that cyclamates will be back on the market in Canada, perhaps as early as next year, to replace some, but not all, of the uses of saccharin as the sugar-replacement is phased out.

But cyclamate-sweetened diet pop will almost certainly remain a thing of the past, Dr. A. J. Liston, a senior official of the federal Health Protection Branch, agreed during an interview Monday.

While cyclamates are no longer suspected of causing cancer, the reason they were banned from most uses in Canada in 1969 and replaced by saccharin in most cases, cyclamates haven't yet received a completely clean bill of health.

APPLE NO LONGER NATURE'S TOOTHBRUSH

LONDON, (UPI) — The British Medical Journal says an apple a day may not be as effective as salted peanuts and cheese in keeping the dentist away.

Editorially surveying the apple's reputation as "Nature's toothbrush," the weekly publication said the fruit eaten after meals may bring about some cleansing of the teeth but salted peanuts and cheese produce a more effective flow of protective saliva.

It added:

"So, while apples must be demoted from their position of eminence as foods 'Good for teeth,' other foods — among them peanuts and cheese — which are harmless to the teeth and help to combat the effects of potentially harmful foods, might be recommended both as between-meal snacks and as the last item of the diet at mealtimes."

OUTLAW STRIKE

The ferry corporation said in the news release Monday it would seek a cease and desist order from the LRB in the event the officers strike.

Corporation spokesmen were not available today to comment on the news release or other aspects of the dispute.

The corporation contends that the strike vote is illegal because only licensed officers were covered in the vote.

The board ruled last week that the officers and the unlicensed personnel should become part of one bargaining unit. There are about 500 officers and 1,700 other employees.

Meanwhile, indications are people are making other arrangements to get off the Island in the event of a strike.

An AirWest Airlines spokesman said the company has never been so busy as it has been in the last two days.

"We're jammed right up," she said.

She said AirWest will step in if there is a strike and provide extra flights between the normal runs from Victoria to Vancouver.

The rush had yet to hit Pacific Western Airlines and Air Canada this morning as both companies reported seats still available on Thursday flights.

The officers' dispute centres around internal issues related to manning, the right to change work schedules, limit temporary vacancies and scheduling time off.

Heroin Smuggling Increases

A surge in the amount of Far East heroin being smuggled between British Columbia and Washington State has led to enforcement being stepped up at border points.

Sgt. Harry Wallace of the RCMP drug section in Vancouver declined to say what steps are being taken but said police are worried about an increase in smuggling activity.

Captain Clark Elster, of the Seattle police narcotics unit, said Monday smuggling conditions and enforcement problems at the B.C.-Washington border may become as acute as conditions on the Mexican border.

The problem has been building up since United States and Mexican authorities recently started a major joint program to eradicate opium poppy fields in Mexico.

Wallace said the program has met with considerable success and caused the supply of Mexican brown heroin to dwindle.

"The drug dealers are turning to alternate routes," Wallace said.

Most of the heroin used in Seattle has been Mexican while most of the heroin used in B.C. comes from Asia's Golden Triangle, where the borders of Thailand, Burma and Laos converge.

CONTROLS' FUTURE FACE MINISTERS

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Provincial finance ministers Wednesday will have a final opportunity to change the federal plan for lifting wage and price controls.

Federal officials expect, however, such a divergence of provincial opinion at the one-day federal-provincial finance ministers' conference that Finance Minister Donald Macdonald will proceed as intended.

And although those intentions will not be spelled out until later this month, in a green paper on decontrol and post-control, it is generally expected decontrol will start on Oct. 14 — on the second anniversary of implementation of controls.

The provinces have varied views on the question.

Unstable conditions prevail over B.C. with a weather system which has passed inland expected to reach Alberta by this evening. Periods of precipitation are accompanying this disturbance eastward followed by showers in its wake. More frequent showers are expected on the outer coast today with risk of thundershowers over northern coastal regions. These showers will gradually decrease tonight becoming isolated over the interior. Conditions will be generally unsettled on Wednesday. Temperatures will be cooler today and Wednesday.

Bring Back Noose: Tories

OTTAWA (CP) Conservative MPs called Monday for a national referendum on capital punishment, arguing that parliamentarians betrayed constituents last year by voting, against popular opinion, to abolish hanging.

Debate in the Commons was started by a private member's bill introduced by British Columbia Conservative Benno Friesen (Surrey-White Rock).

The proposal was routinely talked out by Liberal MPs to prevent it from coming to a vote before the one-hour limit imposed on private bills. It probably won't be debated again at this parliamentary session.

Friesen proposed a national referendum on the issue next year—because Canadians were "betrayed by Parliawere "betroyed by parliament last summer."

The majority of MPs voted last summer to abolish capital punishment for all but a few military crimes.

Hanging was replaced with mandatory life imprisonment for first and second degree murder.

Persons convicted of first degree murder must serve a minimum 25 years before being eligible for parole. However, there is provision for a sentence review after 15 years.

First degree includes planned and deliberate murder, murder of a police officer or prison worker, and murder committed during a hijacking, kidnapping, rape or attempted rape.

Persons convicted of second degree murder must serve a minimum of 10 years. Second degree offences include all other murders, including murders of passion.

Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said 80 per cent of the Canadian population wanted capital punishment retained so MPs "abolished the death penalty against their wishes."

"I can say that I did not betray my constituents," said McKenzie who voted against the government bill last year.

Ethiopia Slaughter Toll Nearly 500

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — At least 300 and possibly as many as 500 students and other young people were killed by troops and peasants during the weekend in one of the bloodiest incidents since the Marxist military government seized power, diplomatic sources said today.

Sources said the slaughter began Friday night in separate parts of the country.

The government newspaper, Ethiopian Herald, announced another 282 "counter revolutionaries" were killed last week by the people's militia in Sidamo district as a country-wide campaign to crush all anti-government opposition, moved into high gear.

At least 115 army trucks and buses crammed with peasants rumbled north from Addis Ababa today, apparently to join a gathering peasant army tens of thousands strong.

The military is expected to use this ragtag army in a "people's war" to crush both the Eritrean secessionist movement and other internal opposition.

Under strict security, Ethiopian strongman Mengistu Haile Marjam flew to Moscow to strengthen his ties with the Soviet Union as a shipment of 45,000 small arms from Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Yugoslavia arrived in Ethiopia.

LIBYANS KICK OUT 200,000 EGYPTIANS

CAIRO (UPI) — Col. Moammar Khadafy of Libya has decided to expel more than 200,000 Egyptians working in Libya by next July 1, the Egyptian Middle East News Agency said today.

The agency also reported Khadafy has ordered no more entry visas for Egyptians, "including even those who work for international organizations and specialized agencies and who have the right to enter all member states of the United Nations."

A Libyan Embassy spokesman denied the report.

He said entry visa applications by Egyptians are being treated the same way as those from the nationals of all other countries.

The agency said Khadafy has set July 1 as "the deadline for deportation of all Egyptians working in Libya including university professors and other school teachers in all stages of education."

Vatican Payroll Heisted

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Two young men on a motorcycle grabbed $8,862 in payroll money from a Vatican official in a daring daylight robbery just off St. Peter's Square, police said today.

Vatican officials said Msgr. Pietro Galavotti, of the Congregation for Causes of Saints, withdrew the money from a bank two blocks from the Vatican to pay the monthly salaries of 21 employees of his department.

He walked back to the congregation headquarters, accompanied by usher Primo Aiani, who carried the money in an attache case.

As the two were entering the congregation building on Pius XII Square, just off St. Peter's Square, a young man ran up to them, grabbed the attache case and jumped on the rear seat of a motorcycle driven by an accomplice.

OIL SLICK FADES AWAY

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Fifteen-foot waves were reported dissipating the last traces of the North Sea oil spill from Bravo rig as the weather continued to co-operate today in the clean-up operation.

"What we need is two days of calm to skim the worst of the oil off, then a good storm to break down the rest," said a pollution expert on Saturday a few hours after the Phillips Petroleum company's runaway well in Norway's offshore Ekofisk field was capped.

Evil Omens in Ottawa

Freedom of information may be a popular issue in Canada's "participatory democracy," but the Trudeau administration calmly and consciously moves in the opposite direction, sealing the few peepholes that have developed in spite of successive government's security obsession. Treasury Board President Robert Andras proudly announced the appointment of a comptroller-general as a step to restore control over government spending. At first glance the appointment looks like a step in the right direction for a government whose spending was labelled "out of control."

Auditor-General J. J. MacDonell called for such an appointment in his last report and the government studiously ignored it, claiming the position would usurp the role of parliament. Now Ottawa has apparently had a change of heart and will find a suitable person to fill the $1,000 per week post. Unlike the auditor-general, a comptroller-general will be charged with judging effectiveness of government programs. So far so good, but the ringer is in the fine print. The comptroller-general's report won't be published. He will go directly to cabinet with his findings. In other words, the watchdog may be barking but the public will never hear him. Cabinet can quietly tidy up the mess without anyone asking awkward questions.

An analogous situation exists in certain clauses of the new communications bill and transportation legislation. Cabinet has proposed to give itself new powers to issue policy directives to regulatory agencies such as the Canadian Radio, Telecommunications and Television Commission and the Canadian Transport Commission. Apparently the government is considering similar controls over the National Energy Board. While these agencies have always appeared sensitive to government policies, the potential for political abuse in the proposed legislation is horrendous. For example, cabinet could issue a directive to the NEB that Canada must have a Kitimat oil pipeline because of a secret energy agreement with the United States. Public hearings on such issues would become a mere facade, a ritual to be acted out after cabinet ruled.

During a period of impending crises on national unity and energy, such centralized political control may be a logical argument. But the government has a duty to announce such proposals publicly and engender debate. There is an intuition in Canada today that we are moving towards a one-party state. The Liberals actively recruit on the left and right, centralize power in cabinet and privy council office, all in the name of national unity. It is not enough to be told these things are necessary by a paternalistic regime. Government holds secret talks on the economy with big business and labor while parliament twiddles its thumbs on a new gun control bill. If a pipeline, any pipeline, was to be built in the country, it would appear that big labor and big business would have the government's ear at the expense of natives, environmentalists or other interveners who do not have the privilege of private cabinet chats.

This administration shows all the old confidence and arrogance that very nearly defeated it in 1972. The Conservatives have a leader who can't keep his own party together, let alone the country, and the NDP is going nowhere. If the Liberals have a certain political smugness again, it should be remembered they have yet to establish coherent national strategies. Instead they would strip regulatory agencies of power and rule from behind thick cabinet doors. In a democracy facing severe tests in the near future our leaders provide evil omens. If the country is survive and prosper it must do so on principles, not secrecy and political evasion.

Special Treatment

"The law grinds the poor, and the rich rule the law," wrote Oliver Goldsmith two centuries ago, when there was one law for the rich and another for the poor. These days all are equal before the courts, butcher and baker with doctor and lawyer. Alleged to be equal, that should read.

For two recent court cases involving members of the last-named profession in Vancouver might convince even those without a trace of cynicism that though all men are equal, some are more equal than others.

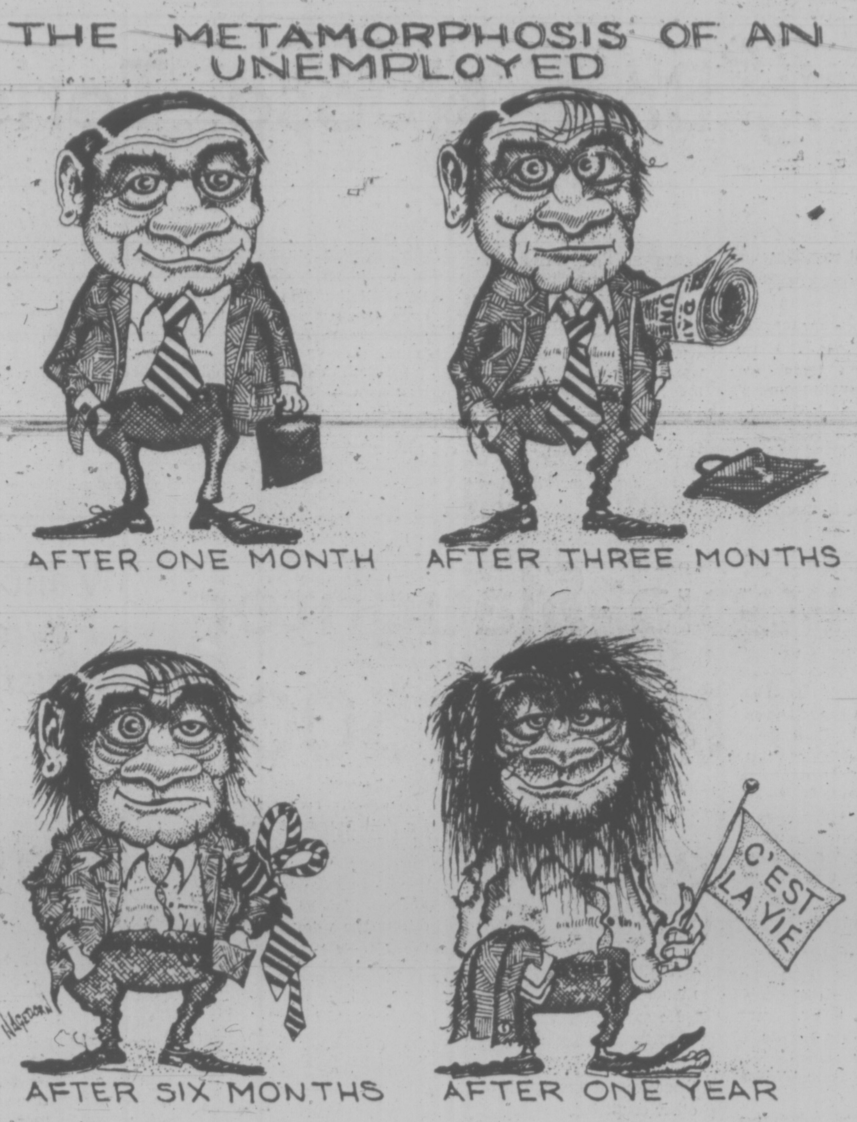
A Vancouver lawyer was convicted of fraud involving $300,000 of other people's money. He lost the money in speculative investments, mortgages supposed to pay very high rates of interest. He violated his clients' trust. What was the sentence imposed in the case? Ninety days in jail, to be served on alternate weekends! Plus three years on probation. Judge Graham Ladner said lawyer Milton Oliver had already suffered loss of his profession and that he owed some $700,000. He noted that the accused would try to make restitution, and witnesses called by the defence said he performed much community work.

In another case, in suburban Richmond, Judge H. E. Swayze ordered an absolute discharge for lawyer George Herbrik after he was found guilty on a charge of wilfully obstructing a police officer. He did so after hearing from both defence lawyer and prosecutor that a fine or jail term would serve no purpose, since he had already suffered mental anguish. It was his very first offence and he was also well-known for charity work. The judge, although he could not recall such ever happening before, gave the man an absolute discharge.

One hesitates before criticizing the law or the judiciary; lawyers, and judges train for years in a demanding and exacting profession. Judges examine each case solely on its own, for no two are ever the same. The circumstances are always different, sometimes highly extenuating. What may seem harsh punishment in one setting is a tap on the wrist in another. Thus it is difficult to compare fairly two different cases where only the fact that the accused were members of the same profession ties them together, and to draw any conclusions. It is difficult but not impossible.

The idea that for a lawyer, just being charged and going through the whole sordid process of appearing in court and having to face one's acquaintances knowing they read every awful detail in the papers, is severe punishment itself and sufficient to the crime thereof is poppycock. Every man or woman unfortunate enough to get mixed up with the law suffers the same embarrassing publicity and humiliating public reprobation. But does that spare them from a fine or jail sentence? Rarely.

Lawyers should not be treated any differently than other individuals. The special treatment—there is no other word for it—accorded the two barristers mentioned above can only bring the law and all lawyers into disrepute.



RICHARD GWYN

Que. Anglophone Exodus

MONTREAL — "Valerie's gone. Sandra's going. Sophie's gone, Roslynn's gone." Seated cross-legged in her mother's duplex living room, Brenda Hynes chanted off the roll-call of the departed among her graduating class of 17.

Brenda, a nurse at Verdun's Douglas Hospital, is a pretty, stocky, 21-year-old, full of vitality and Irish spirit, Soon, she also will be gone. "It's going to get worse before it gets better," she says, head bobbing for emphasis, "and I want to be on the outside looking in." Brenda is the beginning of a daisy chain. In August she marries Brian Elliot, a 21-year-old sales correspondent. They then will move to Toronto, he to study industrial instrumentation, she, if she can unravel the Catch-22s involved in getting Quebec qualifications accepted in Ontario, will work as a nurse.

Mass Withdrawal

Once they leave, Mrs. Elliot will follow. Her Verdun house already is up for sale. So will Mrs. Hynes. A secretary, she has sent her curriculum vitae to two dozen offices in Toronto and Ottawa.

These two families link to other daisy chains. A friend of the Elliots soon will move his trucking delivery service to Ontario. Last week, Mrs. Hynes set out to discover what her neighbors were doing — six other couples on her own street, she learned, are planning to move.

It's not a flight. It's not an evacuation. It's a retreat by anglophones from a society where they no longer feel at home. If the Parti Quebecois language policy is unchanged, and-or if separation becomes accepted as inevitable, this retreat will turn into a mass withdrawal.

No one knows how many are leaving. A majority today certainly intend to stay, either to fight, or to integrate, or because they are too well-off to need to move or because they're too poor and old to be able to move.

People just slip away quietly, trying not to provoke the Parti Quebecois nor to panic their friends. They maintain a facade, until a job elsewhere has been lined up and the house sold, often without a sign on the lawn. David Crevier, a lawyer, tells me of a friend, also a lawyer, "who is dickering with an Ottawa firm but his firm here doesn't know it so I can't tell you his name."

No matter what happens, Quebec's non-French minority of 1.2 million is doomed to diminution. The departure of businesses, like Warnock Hersey and Combustion Engineering, make the headlines.

It's the departure of the young, though, that is decisive. More and more English-Canadians and Jews are sending their sons and daughters to colleges outside Quebec so that, as a businessman put it, "if they decide not to come back they'll have a foothold elsewhere." A recent McGill law graduate knew of only two classmates still in the city.

Language and the prospect of separation aren't the only motives for the exodus. The economic recession — Brenda Hynes in the only one of her class of nurses to be working full-time — is pushing out a number of francophones. Many are buying up business properties in Florida as well as anglophones. For others, Montreal's charm is no longer enough to compensate for high taxes and the omnipresent Quebec bureaucracy.

The core cause, though, is racial. The phrase, "re-conquest" in the Parti Quebecois charter on language has scarred, perhaps permanently, the sensibilities of Quebec's anglophones.

"It's a hell of a thing to spend 30 years here and then to be told you're not wanted, says Anderson who will decide "in a very few months, depending on the legislation" whether to move his 120-employee firm.

Among Montreal's English-Canadians there is now a deep bitterness and even among many of those who once supported the Parti Quebecois, distrust. Bilingualism, many now believe, is no longer enough; it's the right last-name that counts.

"I find I just don't like Montreal any more," says Mrs. Eileen Hynes, an Acadian from New Brunswick and fluently bilingual, Possessed of as much Irish spirit as her daughter, she finds herself talking back in English to store clerks and taxis drivers who, though bilingual, insist on speaking French.

The political consequences of this retreat by a minority which once thought itself attached to a majority but which now finds itself isolated, are obvious. Montreal will lose its vitality, cultural as much as economic. Demographic separation will justify the Parti Quebecois, conviction that French and English can only live apart, or if together be assimilated.

Why Hang Around?

Though more of its members are leaving than anyone cares to admit, Quebec's anglophone minority is a long way still from the point of no return. One-third after all are bilingual, compared, interestingly, to only one-quarter of Quebec francophones. English schooling has changed totally Brenda's 12-year-old sister Paddy, for instance, will grow up, a gift Brenda missed out on, fluent in French.

Yet next fall, Paddy Hynes will start off high school in Toronto or Ottawa. "I hate to see them going," said Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin, the author of the language charter the other day, "They are fearing more than they have to fear."

Reassurances no longer are enough. The guarantees that would end the exodus are beyond Laurin's power to give — Parti Quebecois recognition of official bilingualism within Quebec and recognition that Confederation is here to stay. Without those guarantees, there's no answer anyone can make to Brenda Hynes question: "I'm just starting out life, I don't see a future for someone like me here. Why hang around and get hassled?"

Present logging methods said to be uneconomical.

Wasteful Practices

The statement made by the Forests Minister Tom Waterland in the Times April 15 warning the forest industry that it must halt its misuse of the province's timber is the most important announcement made by any forestry minister for many years.

The Victoria Sierra Club commends the minister for his stand which is long overdue and vindicates those people who have been critizing forest policy for years. Our most important resource has indeed been badly mismanaged — to the extent that it now faces some serious problems and crises. A recent program by Mike Halleran on the CBC emphasized the same points made by the minister.

Even as long ago as 1971 a senior economist with the British forestry commission, Arnold Grayson, shocked a meeting of foresters when he said that B.C.'s forest management programs might be uneconomical in the future. "Investment returns from the forest industry might drop to such a low point that it might be more advantageous to invest the money in other resources," he said (Times, March 21, 1971).

The whole process of wood manufacturing has been subject to wasteful, careless practices. One log in five — i.e. 20 per cent of our logs — is lost due to careless handling on the coast (B.C. Energy Report.) Only the minister has the power to put a stop to these practices and bring, at long last, some sanity to the forest industry and force them to improve the efficiency of their operations. — Evelyn F. Holden, Victoria Sierra Club.

Marvellous Idea

Oh what a marvelous idea the minister of consumer affairs has in hiring university students to hang around the pubs looking for underage drinkers. I am certainly glad he's not wasting students' time and taxpayers' money on such frivolous, temporary measures as painting pensioners' homes, building or improving parks or helping the provincially victimized handicapped.

May I suggest that this could be only the beginning of a whole new growth industry for B.C. For example, students could move portable lie detectors around the various used car lots to check the level of honesty (in fact the machines could first be tested right within the provincial "used car" cabinet). Next students might investigate the integrity of land developers (some carpetbaggers apparently have even bought Cariboo land from widows and sold it shortly after at an enormous profit).

Perhaps a privileged group of students could be sent to Hawaii to spy upon British Columbians shirking their duties under the tropical sun. And of course, there is always the problem of the welfare spongers and the unemployed who refuse to join in the spirit of B.C.'s vibrant, expanding economy.

Perhaps with some student "encouragement" the aforementioned could be pressed into work gangs or could be sent out to watch the students who are watching the underaged drinkers, who are watching for the police, who are watching out for the citizens, who are watching for the first signs of an election — watch for a change. — R. C. Cameron, Victoria.

First Things First

After blaming ferry rates, restaurant prices, kitsch gift shops, lack of courteous salespersons, etc. and every thing else for the lack of tourists in our city, I have come to the conclusion that no one of these things, nor yet any combination of them is the culprit.

One tends to look at all the complicated things first, and finally I have come to think that we must return to the simple things. This is leading up to the fact that I think the ONE SINGLE THING which has caused the tourist trade to drop off is the lack of what the French so indelicately call "pissoirs."

Surely nothing could be worse than getting off a boat where you have had a good meal and a few drinks, and finding no place anywhere near the waterfront to relieve a full bladder. The Empress is really too dignified a lady to have to be used for this purpose, and the fact is that any other place anywhere else is kept securely locked . . . probably they are afraid that someone might pee in it.

I'm reasonably sure that you won't print this letter, but if you should be talking with Sam Bawlf, perhaps you would draw the matter to his attention. Municipal planning is O.K., but for Pete's sake, put first things first. — Caught Short.

Ludicrous

Regarding Mr. Jack Davies's latest defence of the present ferry fares — Times, April 27th — I am totally at a loss to understand how the Minister can compare the English Channel with the Strait of Georgia. Surely the former separates (or links, depending on how one looks at it) Great Britain from continental Europe, where different languages, currencies, etc. are used, whereas the latter is really a highway from one part of the province of British Columbia to another.

Mr. Davis gives us five examples of Sealink fares, overlooking the fact that most European shoppers stay at most a day or two in Britain and use train-ferry connections which may not even include Sealink and are of course much more economical.

Certainly tourism may be up 10 per cent in the U.K. this year, but this does not necessarily have anything to do with Sealink. What about the tourists who come from countries other than those in Europe? What percentage of the whole do they form? The minister attributes the increase in tourism as being due to the bargains the visitors see there. This is not necessarily true because many people go to Britain to visit family and friends, or simply to tour the country, not just viewing it as a shopping trip. However, what kind of bargains would Mr. Davis like to see on Vancouver Island in order to get tourists to pay the exorbitant fares now in effect? Maybe he would consider turning us into a tax-free haven — no sales tax, for example? The ferries would then be used to their fullest extent and no complaints would be heard.

To return once more to Sealink, I wonder how many Britons "on low British wages" use the service; a minimal number I would imagine. The bargains in Britain are not for them, but for people from countries where the currency is stronger.

Yes, Mr. Davis, people who rely on B.C. ferries do feel they are hard done by these days. Justifiably so, because they are not necessarily tourists but island residents who for reasons of business or pleasure would like to visit the Mainland as frequently as possible without bankrupting themselves in the process. We are not concerned with ferry fares in other parts of the world, but with those in the part of Canada in which we live. The fare comparison with Sealink is ludicrous, to say the least. — Mrs. E. Davies, 4035 Zinnia Road.

Financial Aid

I would like to congratulate the Social Credit government for introducing Bill 33 (Independent Schools Support Act). In a society with a basic commitment to consumer freedom of choice, financial aid to independent schools will result in a better allocation of resources and greater social welfare. By introducing this legislation, the government also indicates clearly that it does not wish to develop the educational system in B.C. into a state-controlled means to mould uniform, homogeneous citizens. From both an economic and a human rights point of view Bill 33 can only be applauded! — Dr. Joseph Schaafsma, Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, University of Victoria.

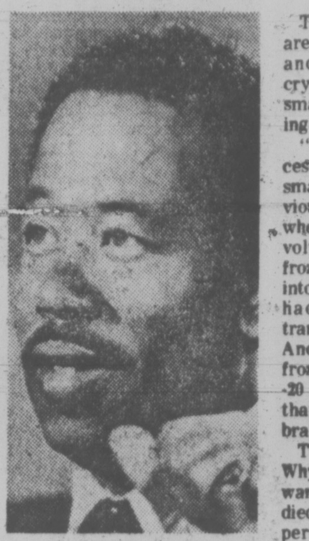
BERKELEY, Calif. — Timothy Leary and Eldridge Cleaver, together again, this time for the uncertain future of a 15-year-old girl. A dead 15-year-old girl.



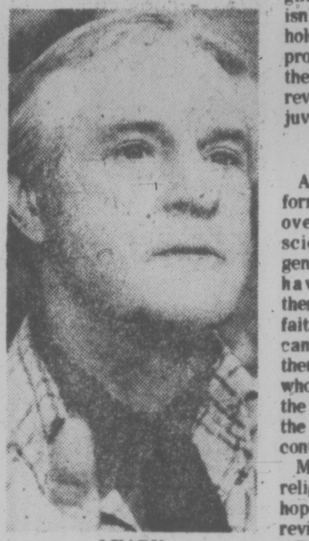
CLEAVER
. . . born again

The last time those two were together was in Algiers. Both were wanted men in the United States. Leary had walked away from a sentence for being the only man ever caught trying to take marijuana into Mexico. Cleaver faced charges laid against him as a leader of the Black Panther Party. It wasn't the happiest of meetings; the two men had a falling out and Leary found himself placed under "house arrest" by Cleaver.

Now, their legal troubles cleared up, they were on stage at a benefit, the Luna Wilson Immortality Benefit to be exact. Cleaver was there as a born-again Christian while Leary delivered the message that everyone could live forever.

* * *

A strange meeting. But not to people in the San Francisco Bay area who believe death, one day, will be nothing more than a temporary inconvenience. The best way of ensuring immortality, they say, is through cryonics.



LEARY
. . . live forever

Cryonics means suspension of the body after death at —196 degrees Celsius in liquid nitrogen until science solves the problem of whatever did you in. The movement here is small but growing. There is a Bay area society with roughly 100 members and associate members who plan to be frozen one day and a private firm with the equipment for freezing and storing patients, as they are called.

Trans Time Inc. now has five of these patients standing around in vertical tanks, awaiting the call. There are other cyronics societies in the U.S. but this is the largest concentration in the country.

* * *

Even for cryonics believers, Patricia (Luna) Wilson is a special case. She was murdered last Oct. 3 while working as a clerk in a Berkeley used clothing store. Her father, writer Robert Wilson, decided to have her brain frozen. He hopes that one day science will be able to reconstruct his daughter by cloning or another method still undiscovered.

He admits it is still a long shot. Patricia Wilson's brain wasn't frozen until a day and half after her death, after a delay in finding her body and an autopsy.

Wilson isn't a rich man and can't afford the $6,000 needed for nitrogen suspension. He needs $1,000 to pay for the suffusing of his daughter's brain with preservative fluids. The other $5,000 will be used to set up a trust fund, with the interest paying for yearly maintenance.

"One of the most important things in cryonics is that members should make the necessary legal and financial arrangements before they need the service," said Arthur Quaife, president of Trans Time. Obviously this wasn't possible in Luna's case.

For a complete suspension there is a one-time charge of $10,000 for preparation of the body. Yearly maintenance is paid from the interest coming from a $50,000 life insurance policy.

Quaife helped start the Bay Area Cryonics Society in 1968 so he has heard all the questions about the worth of the process before. He is a tall man, 34, with greying hair and a mournful expression, as if tired of dealing with skeptics.

He came to California in 1963 to do graduate work in mathematics and became interested in cryonics after reading The Immortalist by Allan Harrington, who argues that death is both unnecessary and eventually avoidable. The title of his book has been taken by a movement that shares this belief.

Quaife isn't making any money from his business. He is living off the money he made during a year's work as a computer consultant.

"There are no guarantees to anything. But one thing is certain — a person who is buried after death has no chance at all of ever being revived."

The techniques of freezing are still imperfect and Quaife and others committed to cryonics are irritated by the small amount of research being done here.

"There have been some successes in freezing and reviving small parts of the body, but obviously it gets more difficult when an entire organism is involved. Kidneys have been frozen, thawed and implanted into other dogs whose kidneys had been removed. The transplanted kidneys worked. And cat brains have been frozen by a scientist in Japan to -20 degrees Celsius and after thawing had nearly normal brain wave patterns."

There are other questions. Why would future generations want to bring back people who died of old age, in a world perhaps more overcrowded than it is now?

The cryonic answers become glib here. They claim the world isn't overcrowded and could hold up to 40 billion people with proper distribution. Besides, they say, the old wouldn't be revived unless they could be rejuvenated as well.

* * *

As well, Quaife says, some forms of death will be harder to overcome than others. So scientists who revive this generation's cryonicists will have plans to be frozen themselves. "If they don't keep faith with us pioneers they can't expect to be revived themselves," Quaife said. The whole movement is based on the belief that the civilization the members are part of will continue.

Most in the Bay area are not religious people placing their hope for immortality in a revival of the body.

But they have an answer for anyone worried about his soul while his body is waiting to be thawed out. "Consider the patients whose life functions were stopped for more than an hour during surgery. What do you suppose happened to their souls? . . . All that cryonic suspension does is stretch out the time scale. We see no theological difference in being revived after a clinical death of five minutes, five years or 50 years," says the brochure Trans Time gives out.

* * *

Fifty years. That is Quaife's guess for the time it will take before revival after cryonic suspension starts becoming a reality.

Meanwhile, he, like the other members, wears a MedicAlert bracelet with a phone number. It will bring the Trans Time van, and emergency cryonic treatment if he is unlucky enough to be involved in a serious accident. And die.

The irony is that Trans Time is not doing well financially. Most people are put off by the high initial payment and only around 40 Americans have had their bodies frozen after death.

This, if anything, is a life-and-death matter for the believers in cryonics. It won't do them any good to hope for new life if the support system they have set up dies for lack of money.

Doctors Turn to Ethics Dilemma

By HAROLD SCHMECK
New York Times

The patient is almost certainly going to die and the doctor knows it.

But, so far, the patient doesn't know, nor does the family. How soon, to whom and in what way must this ultimate unpleasant truth be told? These are agonizing questions as old as medicine itself. But they have a new dimension of complexity today. So do many other medical decisions, including that to withhold treatment from some dying patients, an issue on which the Swiss Academy of Medical Sciences issued guidelines only last week. In such issues, medical science holds only part of the answer.

To help the next generation of doctors cope with these questions medical schools are, more and more, turning to formal courses in medical ethics. These don't try to give the doctor answers to all ethical issues, but, instead, try to help him think them through.

Value Judgments

The courses are usually designed to help the doctor be aware of the role his own value judgments may play in a decision and to realize that these values may — or may not — be shared by patient and family.

The strictly medical issues are complex enough in many life and death decisions, but there are also many other questions that may need to be weighed — the patient's desires, religion, mental state and personality; the family relationships and even whether the family is poor or affluent.

Technology has blurred some of the old distinctions between life and death, giving the doctor wider latitude — and consequently greater need for wisdom. Heightened interest in individual rights has eroded the old-fashioned "Doctor knows best" relationship with the patient.

Whether the patient be a baby so premature as to lie on the borderline of possible survival, or an elderly person slipping inevitably toward the end, the technical and scientific possibilities of medicine call for more conscious decisions.

In a sense, the teaching of medical ethics must date back as far as Hippocrates and the ancient admonition: "First, do no harm." But, until recently, the subject has been taught, somewhat piecemeal, as part of a student doctor's general instruction. Furthermore, in the view of one physician who has given considerable thought to the subject, traditional medical ethics was a matter of a few fundamental precepts that concerned the doctor's behavior but did not often consider deeply the patient's point of view.

"Formal teaching of the subject was perfunctory," said Dr. Edmund D. Pellegrino of Yale University in an editorial last year in the Journal of the American Medical Association. "If done at all," he said, "it consisted largely of the noncontroversial presentation of a few general rules of conduct intermixed with the canons of medical etiquette. As an intellectual endeavor, medical ethics was virtually nonexistent in American medical schools."

Since about 1970, however, courses in medical ethics have proliferated. A survey by Dr. Robert M. Veatch and Susan Sollitto, of the Institute of Society, Ethics and the Life Sciences, Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., shows that by 1974 there were only 10 U.S. medical schools among 107 that answered the survey questionnaire at which medical ethics courses were not taught.

Sought by Students

Much of the pressure for courses on medical ethics appears to have come from the students. Dr. Charles Bodemer, professor of biomedical history at the University of Washington, Seattle, said he has been giving courses on medical ethics for about six years and that the impetus came from first-year medical students. He said a course at his medical school is designed to reach students at the point at which they have just covered patient interviewing techniques. The students, therefore, have had some experience with patients, have had to face some of the difficult questions, but have not yet solidified their own thinking and ways of functioning.

Prof. Ernle Young of Stanford University teaches two courses, an introductory course and a deeper advanced course structured around the fundamental question of what it is essentially, to be human. In the context of that deep philosophical probing, the course then looks at four specific questions with important ethical consequences. One year, for example, the four were defective newborn babies, human experimentation, psychiatry and efforts to humanize care of the dying.

At the University of Chicago, Dr. Mark Siegler says that "Intuitively, physicians are humanitarian and wish to act rightly. What they need is simply an awareness of what they're doing, so that they may reflect upon it and perhaps modify their behavior."

Dr. Siegler asks his students to look a their own motivations and to consider the practical ramifications of possible courses of action. Examined closely, the matter of predicting a patient's death, for instance, is seen as much more complex than might be expected. It may help the patient's family by preparing them for the worst, but it can become a self-fulfilling prophecy if it causes hospital personnel to give the patient less intensive care. And in some cases, the student doctor may come to see that he wants to tell the truth not to benefit the patient but to prevent later recriminations from the family.

In their survey report the scientists at the institute at Hastings-on-Hudson described the present as "an exciting time when more serious attention is being given to such teaching than ever before."

The Tiger Trafficker

russell baker

Not long ago I used to put a tiger in my tank. It always seemed silly since my car was of the dinosaur class, but Esso argued that a tank full of tiger was the best way to get results from a dinosaur.

Why, you will ask, did anyone want a dinosaur? The explanation is shameful. Everybody else had a dinosaur, including the Joneses. It seemed vital to keep up with the Joneses. Everybody else was keeping up with the Joneses. As a result, the entire country was filled with the roar of tiger-powered dinosaurs.

* * *

One day Jones bought a second dinosaur, put a tiger in its tank and presented it to Mrs. Jones. It made me wonder who Jones was keeping up with, but before I could ask he moved out of the city and took his dinosaurs with him. Naturally, everybody else went, too, and they all settled in Bare Acres and its replicas, which were all 20 miles away from town.

I held out until the federal government built a six-lane autobahn across the roof of my house. Twice a day Jones raced across the roof at 70 miles an hour in his dinosaur, throwing banana peels and cigarette butts down my chimney. Naturally, everybody else followed his example.

One day Jones' dinosaur ran out of tank tiger up on my roof, and I climbed up to mug him and smear his windshield with his own banana peels. It was very satisfying but when news spread that Jones had been mugged everybody else naturally began getting mugged, too. One night I went out to put a tiger in my tank, stopped at the drugstore and got mugged in the parking lot.

That cut it. I moved to Bare Acres and a crowd burned a cross on my lawn because I was running down real estate values by not having a second dinosaur. Pretty soon, they said, the neighborhood would be overrun by people with no dinosaurs at all. I resisted until Jones himself came to call.

"Why don't you keep up with me?" asked Jones.

"Who do you keep up with, Jones?" I demanded.

"I keep up with the times," he said, "and it is a hard duty." He began to weep. I comforted him with a bottle of soda pop, but he refused to drink because it was not a low-calorie beverage. "I take only soda pop sweetened with saccharin," he explained.

* * *

"That's ridiculous, Jones," I said. "Don't you know science will eventually discover that saccharin causes cancer in mice, and you will have a terrible time breaking your addiction?"

"Of course," he said. "I know science will eventually discover that everything causes cancer, but I must keep up with the times." He wept inconsolably.

"There, there," I said. "Stop crying and I'll buy a second dinosaur."

"Don't be foolish," he said, "I've already unloaded the dinosaurs and bought a kitten that takes only a mouse in its tank. It was wasteful to buy dinosaurs and selfish to put tigers in their tanks. Nobody needs to travel faster than 55 miles an hour."

He stayed my furious questions. Yes, he said, it was true that the automobile industry had once said dinosaurs were the backbone of America. It was true that the oil companies had urged all Americans to put tigers in their tanks. It was true that the federal government had encouraged everyone to drive 75 miles an hour by building autobahns on my roof. And it was true that the government had encouraged everybody to use astounding quantities of oil by financing inefficient single-family houses on wind-swept individual lots cut out of old cow pastures 20 miles from their work.

* * *

He, Jones, had not been forced to commit all these vices simply because his auto industry, his oil companies and his government had constructed exquisite ways of punishing him if he did not commit them. It had been his duty to keep up with the times.

Now, however, his government and his oil companies and his auto industry were angry at him for having been dumb enough to follow their advice. Before it was all over, he would probably move back into town and buy a cheaper-to-heat row house within trolley-car distance of his work.

"That would take us back to 1947," I said. "Are you saying the last thirty years have all been a terrible mistake?"

"You figure it out," he said. "I've got to put a mouse in my tank."

10-Union Construction Workers Voting on 99-Cent Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — Construction workers from 10 unions have won a package increase of 99 cents an hour in a tentative, one-year agreement reached during the weekend with Construction Labor Relations Association, representing contractors, an industry source said Monday.

The pact will be voted on by workers during the next two weeks, and, if approved, would represent the first pre-expiry agreement for the industry in a decade.

There are seven other unions outside the group of 10 and CLRA is expected to meet with these unions this week to present its offer.

Construction contracts expired at midnight Saturday.

Jim Kinnaird, president of teh B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council, said Monday he is confident the rest of the unions will pick up the settlement.

The council originally sought a package increase of $1.30 an hour on a wide range of base rates.

He said three committees have been established to deal with standardized working conditions, common contract language and common health and safety conditions.

The thrust will be to standardize working conditions for the province's 40,000 construction workers and facilitate total joint bargaining in the future, he said.

Kinnaird said the committees decisions will be implemented in the 1978 pact.

Workers also will get increased travel time payments, tool insurance and allowance, and the increase also includes provisions for vacation, health and welfare benefits.

Kinnaird said a jurisdictional assignment plan in the contract will provide a "domestic relief valve" that will allow the resolution of jurisdictional disputes without a battery of lawyers.

He said he is confident the plan will get the approval of the majority of unions and be used throughout the industry.

Carpenters, ironworkers, bricklayers, painters, operating engineers, sheet metal workers, machinists, insulators, plasterers and elevator workers representing the bulk of construction workers have tentatively settled. Cement masons, plumbers, electricians, laborers, teamsters, glaziers and boilermakers are bargaining separately.

Three-Point Gain In TSE Trading

Industrial products rose 10.92 to 907.27, financial services 1.99 to 873.42 and oil and gas issues 1.05 to 1,101.12. Metals and minerals dropped 8.38 to 1,106.03.

Pipeline stocks led the four gainers among the other 10 groups within the 14-unit index, while communications and media issues were the biggest of the six losers.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. totalled 1.51 million shares compared with 902,000 at the same time Monday.

Pine Point Mines gained ½ to $34, Bethlehem Copper A ⅜ to $12½ and Dome Mines ¼ to $51½. Preston Mines was down ¼ to $15 and United Siscoe ⅛ to $6½.

Francana Oil and Gas rose ½ to $7¼, Asamera Oil ½ to $13 and Total Petroleum North America ¼ to $8. Decca Resources dropped ⅜ to $7¼ and Alminex ⅛ to $8⅜.

New York

Gainers outnumbered losers by better than a 2-to-1 margin and the 2 p.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.65 at 934.87, after a 4.32-point rise on Monday.

Analysts said buying was encouraged by the recent steadiness of the market in the face of signs that the Federal Reserve had begun to tighten credit.

Bright first-quarter earnings reports lifted Boeing ½ to 50½ and Halliburton 1¼ to 62¼.

RCA, which said it expects record second-quarter profits, gained ⅜ to 30¼.

Montreal

AT MONTREAL prices were fractionally higher in light to moderate afternoon trading.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 226,100 shares, compared with 192,400 shares traded up to the same time Monday.

Alcan Aluminium was up ⅛ at $30¼, Total Petroleum ¼ at $8, Zeller's Ltd. 10 cents at $4.15, Canadian Pacific Ltd. ¼ at $17½ and Walker A ⅛ at $26½. MICC Investments was off ½ at $9¼ and Royal Trust A ⅜ at $15.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices were moderately lower near the close of light trading on the London stock market today. The Financial Times index was down 2.8 to 427.9 an hour before the close. Leading industrials drifted lower, while oil issues were mixed. Mining stocks were mixed to higher.

PURCHASING AGENT

An immediate requirement exists for an experienced purchasing agent with a history of successful performance and demonstrated organizing ability. The successful applicant may come from industrial field but knowledge of hospital systems and equipment is desirable. The initial task entails set-up of a project purchasing office and the procurement of a large quantity of furnishings and equipment to a specified critical path schedule. Salary open but commensurate with experience and responsibility.

In Victoria today purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollars 1.0370 for cash, 1.0400 for cheques and 1.0270 for coins. Selling rates 1.0510 for cash and 1.0510 for cheques.

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon Tuesday was up 1-20 at $1.0468. Pound sterling was up 9-100 at $1.8003.

Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Old crop soybean futures were up 45 cents a bushel on the Board of Trade today but new crop months were not quite so strong.

The outgoing May soybean contract thus picked up exactly where it had stopped last Friday and after a one day's respite because of computer problems rose the allowable daily limit. The July option followed but then both eased under profit-taking. The outgoing May options in meal and oil have no trading limits in the month they expire and May meal rose $20 a ton while oil was up some 125 points. Both also retreated later.

The demand for commodities in the complex was linked with several facts. Prices were higher for soybeans and products in Europe before the opening and soybean export inspections last week were sharply higher than the previous week. In addition, Brazil raised the export tax on soybeans to 12 per cent.

As limits were reached in the complex, some trade did develop and prices came off. New crop months were not quite so active and, in fact, distant meal prices were barely steady.

Swedes Top Russ, To Meet Canada

VIENNA (CP) — Sweden knocked the Soviet Union out of first place in the world hockey championship Monday night, earning the right to meet Canada in Wednesday's opening-round playoff battle for medals. The Swedes, forechecking tenaciously and getting outstanding goaltending from Goeran Hoegosta, beat the Russians 5-1 for the Soviet Union's first defeat in the eight-country competition.

The victory left the Swedes and Russians with 6-1 records, but Sweden got first place because of its win over the Soviet Union.

The tournament, which concludes Sunday, now will be split into two groups with the top four teams in one division fighting for medals and the bottom four struggling for lower placings.

Playoffs open tonight with Romania meeting Finland and West Germany taking on the United States. On Wednesday, it's the Czechoslovaks against the Russians and Canada against Sweden in a 3 p.m. EDT contest.

On Friday, Sweden meets Czechoslovakia and Canada plays the Soviet Union.

Canada is expected to be at full strength for the game against Sweden except for Guy Charron, who suffered torn knee ligaments early in the tournament.

Captain Phil Esposito said: "Everyone in Canada should be behind us because this is war. We want to prove something. We have to beat the Swedes, we want to beat the Czechs and we definitely want to beat the Russians."

Czechoslovakia placed third in the first round robin with 11 points, two more than Canada which had a 4-2-1 record. Finland was next with six points, followed by the United States and West Germany with three each while Romania was winless with a 0-7 record.

The Russians, second in last year's tournament with a 6-3-1 record to third-place Sweden's 6-4 mark, outscored their opponents 64-11 in the previous games while the Swedes had a 34-8 edge.

In the first game Monday, defending-champion Czechoslovakia beat the U.S. 6-3 with Ivan Hlinka scoring two goals for the winners before 2,500 fans. The Czechoslovaks outshot the Americans 39-20.

The Swedes outshot the Russians 40-37 but it was Hoegosta who kept Sweden in the game with a number of miraculous saves. Hoegosta suffered a leg injury at the 13-minute mark of the final period and was replaced by Hardy Astroem.

The Swedes scored two power-play goals and the Russians one in the best game of the tournament, a fast-paced affair with plenty of hitting, excellent play-making and brilliant goaltending on both sides.

Per Olov Brasar, Kent Erik-Andersson, Mats Ahlberg, Bengt Lundholm and Rolf Edberg scored for the Swedes who led 1-0 after the first period and 2-0 at the end of the second.

Hans Lindberg, coach of the Swedish team, appeared to be in shock when he appeared for a news conference.

"I am surprised the Swedish team did this. I didn't believe before the game the Swedish team had a chance for victory against the excellent Soviet club."

(Radio station CJVI (900) will broadcast the world hockey tournament game between Sweden and Canada Wednesday at 12 noon.)

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Sweden	7	6	1	0	39	9	12
Soviet Union	7	6	1	0	65	16	12

Saturday's Ex-Park Party Belongs to the Captain

The weekend in review:

From a mainland view, the big problem at Exhibition Park this year may be a lack of handicap performers, at least in numbers. On Saturday, they had the first running of the Kerrisdale Handicap at six and one-half furlongs and it was a virtual repeat of the Lansdowne Handicap of two weeks earlier, especially in the horses.

Captain's Party, a five-year-old stallion with the remarkably consistent record of being in the top three in 10 of his 14 starts last year and never failing to bring back a cheque in 34 career starts repeated his victory of April 16 by coming from off the pace to overtake Cash Your Ticket and Trustwood, who had set a dizzy pace on the front end.

Willie's Revenge, last year's three-year-old colt of the year, showed he isn't far off winning one of these Saturday features as he chased Captain's Party home by about a length. In the previous meeting, Willie's Revenge was beaten half a length by Captain's Party.

When they start stretching out, things may be different since Blue Thumb, a winner of four last year, and Pampas Host, a winner of $64,700, both like the extra distance.

Then there's the unknown potential of Alberta Green. There's no doubt that Alberta Green can run just as his daddy, Count the Green, could. Alberta Green, who was expected to start in the Kerrisdale, won his first two starts at Ex-Park handily, has been in the money in five of six races this year and won three of his four starts last year. He was unraced as a two-year-old.

That's the good news. The bad news is that the bay four-year-old colt has bad feet. His feet, apparently, are too small for his body. He is a big horse and he's subject to infections, which troubled him Saturday when he was scratched.

So whether Alberta Green can run with the regular handicap stars is still to be determined; and whether he can run a distance of ground is problematical. Count The Green was one of the fastest sprinters of his time and holds the track record for six and one-half furlongs at Ex-Park of 1:15 3-5. This is also a world record around two turns.

★ ★ ★

Speaking of speed, it was noted, too, that George Harknett's Winalta, yet to make a start this year, worked out in 46 3-5 last week, and that's a hummer as they say in the trade. Harknett is waiting for his spots for Winalta and Major Hike, who did so well in the latter part of last year's campaign. The word is that both are ready, or nearly so.

Meanwhile, the Harknett's now own another horse. Trainer Wayne Isbister claimed Copper Castle last Wednesday for $6,250.

★ ★ ★

Otherwise, the lounge and dining area at Ex-Park now has color monitors the better to watch the action, and, better still, there's a new instant replay setup in the stewards' room that gives the officials a more rapid readout on any infractions they might want to study.

In previous years, patrol tower films had to be relayed to the stewards and set up for showing. It was not unusual to have a 10-minute or 15-minute delay on an inquiry or objection.

Now the stewards can often make their decision before the jockeys weigh out, as happened in the eighth race Saturday. Bird of Courage impeded My Bob K.K. in the run to the wire, the inquiry sign went up before the horses came to a stop and Bird of Courage had his number taken down while the unsaddling was taking place.

Operations manager Doug Mitten was saying that betting habits were changing. Monday and Wednesday crowds have been down while Friday and Saturday attendance has been up. Play was up if only marginally while the over-all crowd total was down, which made for a higher per-capital output by the bettor. If that's good or bad, or an indicator for the future, he really doesn't know.

Things are hard to figure out, he said; and, after they took down Bird of Courage's number, you could say that again.

GLOBAL HOCKEY TOURNEY IN '78

VIENNA (C) The International Ice Hockey Federation, at its anual congress which opened Monday, announced Monday that it had endorsed unanimously the staging of a global tournament next year between north American and European champion teams.

Although there was no confirmation from official sources, it was understood the North American representatives would be the champions of the National Hockey Leagues and World Hockey Associations.

Nor did the communique indicate whether the European teams would be club or national sides.

Reports are that IIHF president Guenther Sabetzki has endorsed an international cup series in which the Stanley Cup champions would play the European champions and the WHA titleists would meet in a similar series with the European runner-up.

Hockey observers here, however, voiced skepticism about such a tournament, noting that participation by North American teams would require consent of club owners which, thus far, was not forthcoming.

Alan Eagleson, chairman of international hockey for Canada, said he doubts the NHL would buy its part of the proposed tournament but that the WHA had expressed interest.

Trail Blazers Oust Nuggets

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "A great, great game," said Portland coach Jack Ramsay after the Trail Blazers eliminated Denver from the National Basketball Association playoffs by beating the Nuggets 108-92 Monday night.

"We ran our offence well, we were alert and had good, crisp play. When we play that way we are awfully hard to beat."

"Portland can beat anybody," said Denver coach Larry Brown after his team dropped the best-of-seven quarter-final 4-2.

Portland's two speedy guards, Johnny Davis and Lionel Hollins, were doing most of the digging and knocking.

Davis received hardship status last season after his junior year at Dayton University and was Portland's second-round draft pick. He found out from Portland coach Ramsay just before the game that he would start in place of injured Dave Twardzik.

Davis hit 10 of 14 from the field, including a pair of back-to-back shots from at least 20 feet out in the third period. The 22-year-old guard led all scorers with 25 points.

Hollins had six assists and added 21 points, including a 40-footer at the first-quarter buzzer that gave Portland a 33-16 lead. Larry Steele came off the bench to score 14 points, 12 in the first half.

SIZZLING BAT

Dennis Eckert slammed three hits, including a home run that started a three-run rally in the third inning, to lead Victoria Athletics to a 4-2 decision over Colony Inn Royals in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game Monday at Central Park.

Eckert also singled in the first inning and tagged a double in the fourth.

In Victoria Senior Women's League play, CJVI Vicettes and Crescent Angels, the two junior teams in the league, battled to an 8-8 tie while Butler Brothers nudged MacDonalds Furniture, 5-4.

Five Victorians On Archery Team

Also selected for the team were Alan Forshaw of Richmond and Susan Macdonald of Vancouver and Tim Ryan of Vernon.

Jeff Uiricksen and Tom Kennedy of Vancouver were second and third in the cadet boys' division while Marilyn Teitge and Fiona Lamplugh of Victoria were second and third in the cadet girls' section.

Buccaneers Select Bell

NEW YORK (AP) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers, as expected, chose Ricky Bell, Southern California's 218-pound running back, as the No. 1 selection in the National Football League's draft of college talent today.

Seattle Seahawks, picking second, traded their selection to Dallas, as rumored, and the Cowboys took Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett, the most prolific ground-gainer in college history who led the University of Pittsburgh to the national championship.

In return for giving up its first-round pick, Seattle received Dallas' first-round choice — No. 14 over all — and three second-round selections, giving the Seahawks five picks in the first 54.

New Players for New Season As Shamrocks Face Burrards

By BILL WALKER

Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks aren't standing pat as they embark on defence of their 1976 Western Lacrosse Association league championship against Vancouver Burrards at Memorial Arena, Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Five players who are new to the team that lost out in last year's playoffs to the same Burrards will be in the lineup for the season's opener.

Four will be playing their first game for the Irish while the fifth, Gordie Nielson, is making a return after sitting out the latter part of last year.

The newcomers are goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer, defenceman Dave Lowden and forwards Glen Neuman and Gerry Cadwallader.

Smeltzer, who came to the Rocks via Coquitlam Adanacs in a pre-season arrangement, last year was voted the outstanding player in the Ontario Lacrosse Association while playing for Fergus Thistles.

Neuman is a former junior star and last played in the defunct National Lacrosse Association. He was obtained by the Shamrocks from Nanaimo in a trade for Ken Alexander last year, but did not play in 1976.

Lowden and Cadwallader are graduates of Victoria McDonalds, last year's Canadian junior champions.

Lowden will partner Nielson on defence with Norm Baker at centre and Pete Rushton and Dave Thomson on the wings, on another unit.

Ivan Thompson and Chris Hall are teamed up on the third defence unit, working with Charn Dhillon at centre and Ron MacNeil and Larry Bell on the wings.

Smeltzer and veteran George Grover will handle the goalkeeping duties.

Shamrock coach Nirmal Dillon wasn't certain today who his 18th man would be, saying simply the decision would be between Jack Kastelein and Bill Marenchek. Kastalein is a veteran while Marenchek is a former McDonalds player who has been playing in the east in recent years.

Jerry Kustaski and Mike Walsh are classed as "holdouts" for the reason that they are not yet available to the team. Kustaski will be unable to play for another month. Walsh is finishing up his studies at the University of British Columbia.

Rookie Bob Cool, the Shamrocks' first round draft choice, is also classed as a holdout as he has not yet officially reported to the club.

However, that will likely change tonight as Cool, WLA commissioner Roy Burton and Shamrock president Chris Randall are scheduled to meet. Cool has asked for but been denied permission to play for Nanaimo Timbermen.

"I hope we can resolve the problem," said Burton, who offered his services as a mediator in the dispute at a league meeting in Vancouver, Sunday.

Burrards will have their usual veteran crew with two notable abstentions.

They have lost veteran Gord Frederickson, who has retired and Bob Salt, who is the new coach of Coquitlam Adanacs. They have strengthened, with two fine rookies, Rico Bellusci and defenceman Joe Marello.

Yes, penalty king Ward Sanderson will be back, but veteran Dennis Quigley is cast in a doubtful role at present. Veteran Dave Evans will be in goal since Pat Safianuk is on the injured list.

The five teams in the WHL — Nanaimo and New Westminster being the others — will each play a 24-game schedule.

The Shamrocks will play at home every Wednesday night with the exception of May 18.

New Westminster won the playoff championship last year and went on from there to capture the Mann Cup, defeating Brampton Excelsiors 9-8 in the deciding game of a best-of-seven series.

MACS IMPRESS BOSS

Victoria McDonalds, defending Canadian junior lacrosse champions, will have only four regulars from last year in the lineup when they open defence of their title at Esquimalt Sports Centre tonight.

But that doesn't bother general manager Bob Reid.

"Matter of fact I feel quite excited about this club," he said. "They can run and they can shoot and that's a great start for any team."

The four returnees are Tej Labh, Scott Browning, Jim Boyd and Steve Buckley. "And the best part is that these are all first-class "A" players," Reid stated.

Another who can almost qualify as a veteran is Doug Angrove who came up from Junior B ranks last year to play 18 games for McDonalds in the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League.

Also returning after a year's absence are defenceman Lorry Gloeckner and Jamie Robertson. "They will help," said Reid.

Otherwise, it's a brand new ball game for two brand new coaches. Muzz Bryant and Brian Spaven take over where Bill Munroe left off with the Minto Cup last fall.

Munroe has been available to Bryant and Spaven for advice this spring, "but basically this is their ball club," Reid said of Bryant and Spaven.

"We had a fine training camp, and it just broke our heart to make some of the cuts we did," said Reid. "But we can always have a second look during the season."

Reid sees New Westminster and Burnaby as the clubs to beat as each has lost only three players...

But he also sees an improvement in Richmond Roadrunners who will be the opposition tonight.

"They have gone to the dual coaching system," said Reid, pointing out that former Burrards star Gord Frederickson had joined Gary Bergani on the Runners' bench.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Judy, Ken Snap Marks

VANCOUVER — Ken Kirzinger of Oak Bay High School and Judy Tobacco of Cedar Hill Junior High School snapped records at the 29th annual Vancouver Relays at the weekend.

Kirzinger hurled the javelin 58.34 metres to eclipse the B.C. high school mark of 58.179 metres set several years ago by Phil Olson of Nanaimo.

Steve Martin of Cowichan won the open mile event in a time of 4:19.6 and Nick Bennett of Victoria High placed third in the high jump at six feet four inches.

Hillside of West Vancouver won the team competition with 115 points, edging defending-champion Burnaby Central by 15 points. Esquimalt emerged as the top Island team, tying Alpha of Vancouver for sixth place with 30 points.

Meanwhile, Dave Steen of Burnaby Central set four records in two events en route to winning the outstanding high school athlete award for the second straight year.

The 17-year-old, whose father Don was one of Canada's top competitors in the decathlon, broke the B.C. interscholastic, B.C. juvenile and meet records while winning the open long jump with a leap of 7.08 metres and then cleared the bar at 2.01 metres to set a new meet standard in the senior boys' high jump. Dave Steen also finished second in the pole vault, fifth in javelin and sixth in shot put before going to the track and running the first leg for Burnaby Central's winning 4x100 senior relay team.

There Is Nothing Wrong With Handicaps for Pros

There isn't a golfer alive who, at one time or another, hasn't wagered some coin of the realm on his game. As a matter of fact, most of us would have to think hard to remember the last time we played in a foursome without a friendly bet.

On occasion, you may have played a "friendly foursome" with the resident professional as your partner.

Sol you figure the amateur who winds up with a pro partner is "fortunate?"

That isn't so. As a matter of fact, the pro may hinder your attempt to pick up the change at game's end.

By tradition, all golf pros are supposed to be "scratch" players. That means, day in and day out, they are supposed to step on a par-70 course and make the round in 70 strokes.

It is, of course, an unfair fallacy.

When it comes to a handicap—the equalizer inherently built into the game of golf—the golf pro suffers. He is not expected to "own" a handicap. He is, however, expected to shoot par.

Well, sire, times are changing!

Golf pros in the Northern California Section of the PGA are sporting established handicaps. They started keeping tabs in 1973 and John Hughes of El Macero says the handicap system has worked quite well.

★ ★ ★

Among the benefits noted has been a dramatic increase in participation by club pros who previously shunned local and club competitions. Senior and-or less-talented professionals used to avoid competition because they knew they couldn't compete with the young hotshots on a scratch basis. With accredited handicaps to display, many shunners have become players.

Some of our local pros were working with handicaps about 15 years ago.

"Laurie Carroll started it," admitted Ron MacLeod, the Jasper Park Lodge pro who came home for a weekend visit. "And I think it's a good thing.

"First of all, there aren't many golfers, professional or amateur, who can play scratch golf regularly. Then, too, the club pro often has less opportunity to play than most amateurs. The pro should have a handicap."

MacLeod has kept a handicap for more than 15 years. If you ask him today, he's playing to a one. A few years ago, when he wintered regularly at Oak Bay in the company of George Bigelow, Harold Husband, et al, MacLeod had to admit to a plus two.

Carroll, the driving range pro who reigned at Oak Bay for a time, plays to a three ("just a few points off a two").

"I'll play head to head with anybody on an even basis. That is, I'll go with the scratch figure and give an eight-handicapper his eight strokes, regardless of what my handicap should be.

"However, in a foursome, I don't think that system is fair to my partner. If I must play from scratch when I have an honest-to-goodness three handicap, my partner and I are three strokes down even before we leave the first tee."

Jake Peters, now Oak Bay's captain, was one of the "regulars" who prompted Carroll to think about a bona fide handicap.

"Jake was a 10 handicap then, and he always played right to his handicap," Carroll said. "Like all pros, I played off scratch, but actually was a two or three. I'd lose the front nine, one up. I'd lose the back nine, one up.

"With a handicap, I had a 50-50 chance of beating Jake."

Carroll and MacLeod aren't alone. Mike Parker, Doug Mahovlic, Bruce Rands and Mel Check, all Victoria-area assistants, keep handicaps. So do 600 professionals in Northern California.

Barr Shares Lead

TUMWATER, Wash. (AP) — Dave Crowe and Dave Barr each shot a three-under-par 69 to take the lead after the first round of the Washington State Open golf tournament Monday at the rain-soaked Tumwater Valley Golf Club.

Barr, of Vancouver, was an alternate and wasn't assured of tournament spot until Monday morning. He had never seen the Tumwater course before he teed off. Crowe is from Forest Hills, Ore.

Twenty-two other players were within three shots of the lead after the opening round of the 54-hole tournament.

The top amateurs after the first round were Bill Sander, Fred Urquhart and Kent Meyers with 72s. Sander is the United States Amateur champion. Defending champion Chuck Milne is one shot back of the leaders.

Nordiques Shell Racers

QUEBEC (CP) — Talk in Quebec Nordiques' dressing room after the club whipped Indianapolis Racers 8-3 Monday night centred on the outcome of the other World Hockey Association semi-final series between Winnipeg Jets and Houston Aeros.

The Nordiques won their best-of-seven semi-final series against the Racers 4-1, meaning they will meet the winner of the Winnipeg-Houston series.

"The finals are going to be tough," said Quebec coach Marc Boileau.

However, some of his players expressed confidence if the opponent is Winnipeg.

"We can skate with Winnipeg," said defenceman Paul Baxter. "Winnipeg has a heck of a team. I'd like to go against Winnipeg."

The Jets have a 3-1 lead over the Aeros with the fifth game of that series tonight.

"I hope we play Winnipeg because Houston, in my opinion, is a tougher club than the Jets," said Quebec's Garry Lariviere. "They have the experience and the old man (Gordie Howe).

WHA scoring champion Real Cloutier seemed ready to take on anyone after a three-goal effort in the game Monday night.

"It's the first time in the playoffs I've scored three goals," he said. "It's a good preparation for the finals.

Paul Demers, coach of the Racers, praised Quebec after his team's final game.

"We had the heart, but not the talent," he said. "They have the experience. They make less mistakes and with guys like (Marc) Tardif, (Serge) Bernier, Cloutier and the Bordeleaus (Paulin and Christian), you've got a super team."

Paulin Bordeleau scored two goals in the Quebec victory. Bernier, Normand Dube and Francois Lacombe had the other Quebec goals.

Victorian Wins Downriver Test

COWICHAN — Visitors captured three of the five events in the Vancouver Island slalom and downriver races held Sunday on the Cowichan River.

Eric Munshaw of North Vancouver won the Kayak Slalom and Clubmate Dennis Hendry took the canoe slalom. Seattle's John Witte topped the downriver boat event.

Elgin Inducted

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Five new members, including former Los Angeles Lakers star forward Elgin Baylor, were inducted into the national basketball hall of fame Monday.

Baylor was the best known of the five men who has their colorful stained glass windows unveiled in the hall's honors court. But most of the emotion was reserved for Charles T. "Tarzan" Coooper, a star from another era.

Cooper, 71, of Philadelphia, played professional basketball for nearly 20 years beginning in 1925. He was considered the most valuable player on the New York Renaissance team which won 88 straight games in 1932-33.

Others inducted were University of South Carolina coach Frank McGuire and early college stars Lauren 'Laddie' Gale of Oregon and William C. 'Skinny' Johnson.

Braves Streak Wrong Way

By The Associated Press

Atlanta Braves are on a streak—only it's going the wrong way.

"We are not going to panic," manager Dave Bristol said, Monday night after the Braves lost their ninth consecutive game, an 11-1 National League baseball decision to Pittsburgh Pirates.

One can sympathize with Bristol. His team has not only been beaten of late, but embarrassed by lopsided scores on a lot of occasions.

"He isn't going with a full deck out there," said Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner, alluding to the absence of outfielder Gary Matthews, infielder Willie Montanez and pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dick Ruthven. "That's probably four of his top players."

Bristol could have used some of them Monday night, especially the pitchers. The Pirates hit four home runs off the soft-touch Atlanta staff.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, San Diego Padres beat Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers turned back New York Mets 3-1.

In the American League, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Toronto Blue Jays 3-1, Oakland A's whipped Baltimore Orioles 2-0 and Kansas City Royals downed Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Ed Ott drove in three runs with a single and a homer and Willie Stargell, Omar Moreno and Fernando Gonzalez also homered for the Pirates, who won their eighth game in their last nine starts.

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum singled home the tying run in the ninth inning and on the same play, Cesar Geronimo raced home on an error by St. Louis third baseman Hector Cruz to give Cincinnati its victory over the Cardinals.

Bill Almon's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning lifted San Diego over Philadelphia and snapped an eight-game Padres' losing streak. Bill Russell's run-scoring single in the eighth inning broke a 1-1 tie and led Los Angeles past New York.

Vault Caper Mastermind Home Free?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police investigating the January break-in at Vancouver Safety Deposit Vaults, from which about $1.5 million was recovered, don't rule out the possibility that somebody skipped with $500,000 in cash.

The robbers seemed so clever in burrowing through a yard-thick wall of concrete to enter the Pender Street vaults, yet so stupid to head immediately for Vancouver Airport and get caught red-handed with bulging bags of boodle.

Now, however, it appears that when all the claims are in, there will be that hefty cash shortfall and maybe an impressive pile of diamonds and gold unaccounted for as well.

So the theory is that the ringleader (or ringleaders) of the heist carefully set up their chums who bungled out to the airport, up to their armpits in glittering goodies.

With loot worth some $1.5 million recovered, couldn't the ringleaders expect the heat to be off when they quietly departed for Rio a few days later?

"That theory is 'strictly speculation,'" said Vancouver police detective Jim Sparks, one of four veteran officers investigating the robbery, "but it's a logical explanation.

"It's my personal opinion that vault customers aren't exaggerating their claims. The items such as coin collections that can be checked out tend to indicate that people are being honest about what's missing."

Meanwhile, vault custodian Andy Easton and a staff of six are busily sorting out coins and gems that had been left, largely dumped on the floors, by the burglars.

"Sorting out hundreds of sets of coins of all kinds, all mixed together, is quite a job," Easton said. "We've already got thousands of entries, from pennies to gold pieces, filling up whole books."

Earlier, somebody estimated that the confused heaps of coins on the vault floors weighed about 2½ tons.

Five men have been charged in connection with the robbery. They are Paul Thomas Bryntwick, 35, Kenneth Fisher, 30, and Robert John Stone, of Montreal; Ronald McCann, 44, no fixed address; and Talbot Murphy, 49, of Surrey.

There is also, of course, that clever chap — no doubt looking like a candidate for a Hathaway Shirt advertisement, basking in the sun somewhere . . .

581st Jumbo Victim Dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Charles Pinkstaff, 59, of San Diego has become the fourth victim to die here after the crash of two jumbo jets in the Canary Islands on March 27. His death Monday at the Brooke Army Medical Centre brought the toll in the collision to 581.

Dates, Places Set For Food Hearings

The legislative agriculture committee studying food prices in B.C. has drawn up a proposed list of public meetings to be held around the province from late May to mid-September.

The committee will receive submissions from producers and consumers on such subjects as requirements of agricultural land, the cost of food production, the effect of marketing boards, pricing practices of wholesalers and retailers and merchandising methods.

The first public hearing will be held in Parksville at the Island Hall Hotel May 31.

Other proposed hearings include: Victoria, Newcombe Auditorium, June 2 and 3; Cranbrook, Town and Country Inn, June 14; Castlegar, Selkirk College, June 16; Kelowna, B.C. Vocational School, June 29 and 30; Kamloops, David Thompson Motor Inn, July 6 and 7; Williams Lake, Travelodge, July 18; Prince George, Inn of the North, July 20 and 21; Fort St. John, Mackenzie Inn, August 2 and 3; Smithers, Legion Hall, August 16; Prince Rupert, Crest Motor Hotel, August 18; Abbotsford, Legion Hall, Sept. 7 and 8; Vancouver, Holiday Inn, Sept. 19 to 23.

Tory leader Scott Wallace who, along with Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, was excluded from the committee, said Monday the summer sittings will hinder the work of the opposition.

Wallace said it looks now as if the legislature will sit during at least part of the summer, and the three NDP MLAs on the committee will miss some important debate.

There are seven government members of the committee and three NDP MLAs — Barbara Wallace (Cowichan-Malahat); Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) and Dave Stupich (Nanaimo).

Island Hwy. Bridges Put Out for Bids

The provincial highways department has called for tenders on the construction of five bridges, part of the Island Highway construction and improvement program.

Highways and Public Works Minister Alex Fraser said Monday the bridges are part of the project to provide a paved highway from Victoria to Port Hardy.

The bridges are located at Adam River, 54 miles north of Campbell River, Eve River, six miles farther north, Stowe River, 39 miles north of Campbell River, Lower Elk River, three miles north and the Upper Elk River, a further four miles north.

Tenders on the first two bridges are returnable May 20 and for the other three May 25.

Meanwhile the highways department has called its first tender for a contract described entirely in metric measurements.

Cabinet Names Co-Ordinator

Ronald M. Tweedie has been appointed co-ordinator of provincial labor education at a salary of $24,000 a year by a cabinet order released Monday.

HEROIN SENTENCE 2½ YEARS

Bryan Terrance Fogarty, picked up by police with the equivalent of 96 capsules of heroin last August, was sentenced in Victoria county court Monday to two years and six months in penitentiary.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart found the 27-year-old Maple Ridge man guilty of possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

The heroin was found inside 96 small compartments of strips of plastic.

Fogarty said he had bought the heroin for his own use, but the judge said he didn't believe this.

Stewart said Fogarty was not safe to be left at large. He was unable to cope with "the ordinary responsibilities of a citizen" and had committed a "very serious" crime.

He said a penitentiary sentence was necessary because of the "very serious nature of the offence" and because it seemed to be the only hope of rehabilitation left, although he added, "I don't have all that confidence" in rehabilitation in a penitentiary.

No Memory of Fatal Crash

Accident victim Jennifer Jean Green, 29, told an inquest jury Monday she does not remember whether she drove a sports car which crashed and killed her companion March 16.

Peter John De Hann, 18, of 240 Simcoe, died in the crash near the Malahat Chalet following a staff party at the Century Inn.

"The last thing I remember is a staff party; it might have been on Saturday or Sunday," said Green, of 7339 Tomlinson.

She denied the suggestion but stated a liking for sports cars.

When Petronio suggested she was driving the car north on Trans-Canada Highway near the Chalet, the witness replied:

"I don't remember."

The mother of two said at another point, "My mind is not what it should be at this point."

Police evidence indicated virtually all the damage to the car was on the passenger side, where hair samples were found similar to those of the deceased. More were found on an object at the roadside which was struck by the car.

The youth's body was found near the passenger side of the car.

The woman was lying on the opposite side, with injuries that included two crushed vertebrae, concussion, fractured collar bone, collapsed lungs and cut chin.

It appeared neither occupant had worn seatbelts.

The hearing concludes tonight at 7:30 in the Law Courts with legal summations.

North Coast Barge Service Set to Start This Week

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A combined truck and barge service to carry freight from Vancouver to outlying north coast communities should begin operation this week, the owner of the service said Sunday.

Archie York, owner of Surrey-based Quadrant Transportation Services Ltd., said his recently-formed firm received approval from the Public Utilities Commission April 29 to haul general cargo as long as it is destined for outlying communities.

York said he is preparing a submission to the commission asking for approval to deliver to Prince Rupert as well.

He said Quadrant moved two tugs and a scow into Prince Rupert during the weekend, ready to move trucks to the communities.

York said that where docking facilities are not designed for trucks, cargo will be unloaded by forklift. He said Quadrant has also chartered a self-propelled vessel capable to carrying 30 tons to deliver small cargoes to communities on the coast.

Germans Arrested

Eight Students Get Union Rate

Saanich council agreed Monday to dip into contingency funds to pay union rates to eight of 56 students to be hired this summer.

Of the 56 positions approved under the provincial government youth employment program, 48 will be paid the provincial rate of $22.50 a day.

Ald. John Mika and Ald. Ian Cass, who negotiated with the union on the other eight positions, conceded six of them shoud be paid union rates at the beginning of negotiations, the union insisting the other two positions should also be paid at union rates. The council originally applied for 73 positions under the provincial program but 17 were turned down.

In view of the provincial government's decision to provide additional funding, Saanich will now reapply for those 17 positions, as well as others for recreation work. Saanich will also ask assistance from the school board and University of Victoria counselling services in identifying students who need jobs most.

No student jobs will be made available to immediate families of any elected official.

At an earlier meeting, council agreed to use $100,000 from 1976 surplus funds to provide summer jobs. On Monday council agreed, on Cass' suggestion, that the funds be used for an "emergency employment program."

Ald. Joe Bourque, visiting his sick father in Vancouver, came under fire from several of his fellow aldermen for his public comments on the summer employment program.

Mika said they were "clandestine distortions planted in the press. I think the ad-hoc committee could have got much further if some members of council had not flogged a story that 70 jobs were going down the drain when we actually only lost two."

Ald. Robert Cameron said university students should be given first choice.

"There's plenty of need outside university students. It should be based on need, not want," Cass replied.

Reserves Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The government raised its holdings of U.S. dollars by $70 million during April to a total of $2.773 billion, the finance department said today.

Total official international reserves, valued in U.S. funds, were $75.186 billion on April 30, up $92.5 million from the previous month.

Until April, the government had been selling off its U.S. dollar holdings in an effort to slow the decline in international value of the Canadian dollar. Since last November, the Canadian dollar has dropped in value from $1.03 U.S. to about 95 cents.

In New York Monday, it was valued at 95.57 cents U.S.

In recent months the government has been stabilizing the value of the Canadian dollar by selling off U.S. dollar holdings and buying unwanted Canadian funds from international markets.

Carter Drafts Welfare Reform

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration Monday announced the outlines of a welfare reform program that would guarantee jobs for people who can work and cash assistance to those who cannot.

Carter told a news conference that the present welfare system should be scrapped but said that his new one probably would not be implemented for four years.

He also laid down an edict specifying that the new system must not cost more initially than the present assortment of programs.

The president said that a three-month assessment by the department of health, education and welfare produced the conclusion that welfare now "is worse than we had anticipated."

Although many features of the reform remain unresolved within the administration, HEW secretary Joseph Califano and labor secretary Ray Marshall provided these details:

Every family with a child and a member able to work would be guaranteed a job — a publicly financed one if private employment is unavailable. Money from the present public-service jobs program would be diverted to make those jobs available.

A number of present assistance programs would be consolidated so that recipients, who cannot work, would be eligible for a single cash payment. The assistance would follow uniform national standards, varying only by the differences in cost-of-living from area to area.

The earned income tax credits already in the tax law would be retained to help the so-called working poor.

U.S. REVAMPS AFRICAN AID?

WASHINGTON — The House International Relations Committee, seeking to reorient U.S. policies in Africa, took preliminary action Monday to slash military aid to Zaire and convert the proposed transition fund for Rhodesia into an aid program for the black African states surrounding that white-controlled nation.

The tentative decisions, subject to review in committee sessions later this week, were early indications of congressional intent to make major changes in President Carter's foreign-policy propsals.

Hush Fund Tape Denied

WASHINGTON (WP) — Former president Nixon's lawyer Monday labelled as "false" reports published last weekend that Nixon discussed Watergate "hush money" with his special counsel, Charles Colson, on Jan. 8, 1973.

Herbert Miller, the Nixon lawyer, said in a letter to The Washington Post that records of the Watergate special prosecutor confirm that a second version of the transcript of the Nixon-Colson meeting show there was no hush money discussion.

Spokesman for Watergate special prosecutor Charles Ruff Monday night denied Miller's claim. The spokesman would say only that there are at least two versions in transcript form of the particular Nixon-Colson meeting and that Ruff has not told anyone which of these, if either, conforms with records in his office.

Colson also said Monday that the version quoting Nixon inquiring about hush money is incorrect.

The quotation as reported in the press this weekend had Nixon telling Colson: ". . . God damn hush money, uh, how are we going to; (unintelligible). How do we get this stuff (unintelligible) . . ."

Colson said he had listened to the tape two years ago for many hours and the discussion "Hush money" was not in the conversation. In addition, Colson said that two of his lawyers agreed with him that there was no "hush money" discussion.

Two official sources involved in preparing the tapes and who have listened to the Jan. 8, 1973 conversation however, said that the tape has a discussion of "hush money." One specifically recalled that Nixon had used the phrase "God damn hush money."

SOVIET WEAPON DOUBTED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon discounts as a "remote possibility" an aviation magazine report that the Soviet Union is developing an energy beam that could neutralize all U.S. missiles and "checkmate this country's strategic doctrine."

Aviation Week and Space Technology said in its current edition that "because of controversy within the U.S. intelligence community, the details of Soviet directed-energy weapons have not been made available to the president or to the National Security Council."

It called for a public debate on the potential threat.

A Pentagon statement Monday said its senior officials "do not believe the Soviet Union has achieved a breakthrough" in the field and that "based on all information now available to the U.S. intelligence community, this possibility is considered as remote."

Aviation Week, which said it anticipated a challenge, claimed there was hard proof the Soviets "leapfrogged a generation of high-energy physics technology and developed a workable experimental model of a director-energy beam weapon."

Publication sources said the Pentagon tried to have the article suppressed or censored on grounds of national security.

Anti-Nuclear Protesters Causing 1,414 Headaches

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — While 1,414 anti-nuclear protesters are in custody at four state armories, New Hampshire is paying about 500 National Guard troops $35 a man a day — or close to $20,000 daily — to watch over them.

Then there's the yet-to-come food bill for the demonstrators, including dinner Monday night and breakfast today, and for assorted other costs.

Not to mention the inconvenience to guards called from their higher-paying civilian jobs to active duty. And in most cases, they do not draw.

The protesters, most of them in their 20s, were arrested and arraigned on charges of criminal trespassing, a misdeameanor, after refusing to end a peaceful weekend camp-in at the construction site of the Seabrook nuclear power plant, about 50 miles east of this state capital.

They declined to post bail, which ranged from $100 to $500. And this small state, with a population of less than one million, does not have jail facilities to hold such a large group at one time.

Court authorities say hearings will be held as soon as they can be arranged. Robin Read, a spokesman for the Clamshell Alliance, which sponsored the demonstration, said the protesters plan to remain in custody until court hearings have been completed.

The demonstrators were being confined Monday night in the drill sheds of the armories, which are assembly halls used also for athletics and recreation.

There are no cots available, so the young men and women used sleeping bags they had brought with them for the demonstration.

TUNA FLEET HEADING OUT

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The U.S. tuna fleet will sail Wednesday while environmentalists, the industry and Congress work out a compromise on how many porpoises can die in a tuna catch, an industry official says. August Felando, general manager of the American Tuna Boat Association, sent a telegram to Senator Alan Cranston (Dem. Calif.), announcing the resumption of sailing.

Cranston, who is working on the compromise with a coalition of 14 environmental groups and the tuna industry, urged the sailing because "for the fleet to stay in port now would be to simply prolong needlessly the economic agony of San Diego and other communities."

$160 Armed Robbery Nets 4 Years in Jail

A 30-year-old Saanich man was sentenced in Victoria county court Monday to four years in the penitentiary for a $160 armed robbery at Mac's Convenience Store, 3624 Shelbourne, on March 24, 1976.

Robert George Walton, 3975 Cedar Hill Cross Road, was found guilty by a jury March 10. Sentencing was delayed for a pre-sentence report.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart said "defenceless merchants" had to be protected from "cowardly attacks."

He said Walton had displayed anti-social criminal tendencies "certainly at an age when he should have known better."

He said armed robbery was a very serious offence which happened "altogether too frequently in this area and others in the province."

Crown counsel Trudi Brown had urged a lengthy sentence, saying there was "great public concern at armed robberies" and that Walton had a knife.

Walton has a record including assault causing bodily harm in 1969 and several offences, including mischief and theft under $200. Defence counsel Douglas Christie said the later offences were "of a nuisance nature."

PARK PROPOSED

CROFTON — A 27-acre area, including 800 feet of prime beach frontage, may be bought by the Cowichan Valley Region Board for use as a park.

The board has agreed that its personnel and administration committee should meet with the owners, Ruth and Ray Gallagher, on possible purchase.

The provincial parks branch planning section recommended two years ago that the department buy the land because of high recreational value. Other financial committments at the time prevented its purchase.

Most thefts are from cars parked underground or behind apartments

Car Thefts on Rise

900 Were Reported Last Year With Losses of Over $100,000

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

So you left your car unlocked while you just popped into the corner grocery.

And you never lock your car when it's right outside your house, or in your driveway.

Last year more than $100,000 in goods was stolen from cars in 900 individual thefts — some from unlocked and many from locked cars.

In the first three months of this year there were 240 thefts from cars. Value of the articles taken is $22,000.

"This type of crime is definitely on the upswing," said Sgt. Robert Newton. "I would say it is increasing by about three per cent a year."

Unlike the United States where theft of citizen band radios has become the biggest single object of larceny, thieves here concentrate on tape decks, he said.

"There are many vehicles with CB radios, but for some reason thieves instead go after tape decks," he said. "Of course, they will steal at the same time cameras or any merchandise left around."

Tape decks are easier to peddle, he said.

"Most car owners don't keep a record of the serial numbers of their tape decks," he said. "So it is difficult to prove they are stolen goods."

"It's amazing the number of people who don't lock their cars," Newton said.

Some thieves are skilled at getting into a car with the help of wire cloth hanger through a window edge. And, of course, anybody can smash a side vent window.

"But keeping doors locked would help," Newton said. "It takes a little longer for a thief to break into a locked car. The noise also attracts attention."

Insurance agents said there has been no increase in insurance rates for thefts from cars.

Most of the thefts are covered in home fire insurance policies, insurance agent John McTavish said.

"Some companies won't cover a theft from a car left unlocked," he said. "It must not only be locked but there must be evidence of a break-in." He said other companies will cover articles stolen from cars, whether locked or not, but exclude radios and tape decks.

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. does not insure personal belongings stolen from a car. These would include cameras, clothing and fishing rods.

But ICBC covers tape decks which have been installed at the factory or custom installed, as well as other items such as spare tires, tool kits, jack and safety kit.

"If a driver installs his own tape deck, he can't claim anything if it is stolen," an ICBC spokesman explained.

"But most of these items are covered under home insurance fire policies," he said.

TOWN TALK

Mackin in turn has moved into government as a public relations man with the health education and information services section of the health ministry.

Both took up their new duties Monday.

Simnett, meanwhile, had to give up his daily editorial comment spots at CFAX. These have been taken over by Colonist city hall reporter Hubert Beyer.

When you have a big meeting with several legalities to be tidied up, motions to be made and seconded, how do you make sure nothing is missed?

You write a script — and that's exactly what members of the board at Victoria General Hospital had in their hands for its recent annual meeting.

Alas, perhaps the script syndrome doesn't sit well with those who aren't worrying about details. There were numerous revisions in the script and in the end, three board members were voted out of office.

That fence surrounding the long-established rose garden in Beacon Hill Park, by the sundial, doesn't signify some dark plot by the city parks department to deny access to rose lovers.

Parks administrator Cliff Bate explains that the grass in the area was worn pretty thin during the unusually dry winter. It has been re-turfed, and the fence is to allow the grass a chance to establish itself before another summer of heavy use.

The Mobil Oil Corporation of New York seems to be doing its bit to preserve Canadian unity by encouraging travel in la bells province. At least its Travel Guide star rating would indicate a preference for restaurants and hotels Francais.

Only three Canadian restaurants rated the guide's four-star award — all in Quebec, and five of the 10 hotels to receive four stars are in Montreal.

The Empress was passed over, a fact that doesn't worry manager Ted Balderson. He says auto travellers using such guides are more interested in price than stars. And besides, the larger Canadian Automobile Association guide gives the Empress four stars out of a possible five. There are no five-star ratings in Victoria, he said.

Income tax consultants H and R Block were busy right up to the end of business hours on Monday, final day for filing tax forms without penalty.

Victoria manager Steve Borbola said several hundred declarations were processed. It wasn't quite as hectic as last year, but filing was more confusing to the public.

He said whenever there are changes in tax exemptions "it's enough to confuse the public. It's hard for the layman to understand the government's intent."

Nobody wants to throw the first stone but it's an honor to throw the first shoe when it's the official opening of the Victoria Horseshoe Club, Glanford and Kenneth.

That honor goes to Mayor Ed Lum this Saturday after he receives a $5,500 cheque from vice-president and Canadian champion Clayton English. The money came from a New Horizons grant which has helped provide new lighting, concrete pitches and a remodelled clubhouse, with Saanich picking up the rest of the tab.

Nature Tours Set

Conducted nature tours will be held for the first time at Witty's Lagoon Capital Regional park during the summer months.

Park administrator Jack Kanhoffen said the walks have been made possible by an LIP grant enabling the CRD to hire a park naturalist for May, June and July.

Robert Rompen, a second-year biology and botany student at the University of Victoria, will explain to visitors why the lagoon is such a unique place for plants and animals.

Kanhoffen said the upper storey of the old cabin facing Sitting Lady Falls in the park will be turned into a nature house where natural history exhibits will be displayed.

He said the naturalist will be at the park five days a week and Saturdays as well during the summer.

Suites In Old School?

The city-owned Beacon Hill School on Douglas is to be offered for sale to developers interested in converting the building to apartment accommodation.

A recommendation to that effect from land commissioner Ken Wilkins was endorsed today by Victoria's land management committee.

In his report to aldermen, Wilkins noted that the old school is in good structural condition, and could be converted relatively easily into at least five suites.

He said several individuals and groups have already expressed interest in purchasing the property.

$139,000 For Road Closures

Traffic will be ousted from two roads in the Springridge-Fernwood area, under spending proposals recommended today by Victoria's neighborhood improvement committee.

The projects are the closure of Gladstone west of Fernwood and of Pembroke west of Fernwood. The capital costs involved, totalling $139,000 for engineering and parks work, will be found from the $1 million Neighborhood Improvement Program fund for Springridge.

The committee also recommended that negotiations be conducted with Greater Victoria school board on cost-sharing for a third period — the closure of Queens at Chambers, for which the preliminary cost estimate is $39,400.

Disband, Says Cass

The Greater Victoria inter-municipal committee should be disbanded if it doesn't function better than it does now, says Saanich Ald. Ian Cass.

A member of the inter-municipal committee since January, Cass said it took 40 minutes to get a quorum at the first meeting he attended, which turned out to be a "nothing" meeting." The second meeting was concerned only with grants to organizations.

Cass said he intends to enlist Saanich council's support in strengthening the intermunicipal committee, which he considers should be co-ordinating, resolving traffic and planning problems and standardizing protective services.

No Ferris Wheel on Highway

Royal Oak residents won a partial victory Monday when Saanich council voted not to allow a ferris wheel and coin-slot machines as part of a "Coney Island" on the Pat Bay Highway near Vanalman.

Residents crammed the council chamber for the first session since night council meetings were reinstated to protest an application by Doug Webb of Fun City Attractions Ltd. to build an amusement park on the site.

Aldermen did, however, vote to allow Webb a business licence for bumper and mini cars.

In deference to the neighbors, Webb said, he had already agreed not to erect the ferris wheel.

Municipal solicitor Doug Patterson warned that refusing Webb a licence for the bumper and mini cars could result in legal action against the municipality because the site is zoned for outdoor recreation.

It was Patterson's opinion that coin-slot machines did not come into the outdoor recreation category.

Mayor Ed Lum had to warn the residents on occasion that he would clear the chamber if their protest did not remain orderly.

Richard Gauthier, president of the Royal Oak and District Ratepayers' Association, said an amusement park would lead to the selling of dope and noise pollution and attract undesirable elements.

Asked by Ald. John Mika what future attractions he planned, Webb said, "We definitely want to be a good citizen in this area. We certainly do not want to upset our neighbors."

Webb said he had had amusement park experience in Tokyo and Dallas and intends to make the Pat Bay one a family centre.

He said future plans call for children's slides, a synthetic ski slope, skateboard track, pony rides, a miniature train, outdoor roller skating and other attractions.

Council's finance and legislative committee will discuss what policing is needed and what restrictions of hours is required while the lands, planning and housing committee will study outdoor recreation zoning to see if it should be adjusted to provide better control.

SAANICH TO HOLD HEARING

Office-Retail Building Eyed

A public hearing will be held later this month on a land-use contract between Saanich and Aske Construction for a combined office-retail complex at Cedar Hill and Garnet.

The complex is to be built adjacent to the McKenzie Mall by Aske Construction.

A two-storey building, comprising 24,586 square feet, is planned for the 1.19-acre site. Two-thirds of the building will be for retail outlets. Sixty-five per cent of the parking will be underground.

In a report at Monday's council meeting, municipal planner Gil Laurenson recommended the project "as it satisfies the recommendations of the Ward and Associates' report to improve the municipality's financial situation and it also fits within the framework of the development of a regional centre in this area."

A land-use contract for a senior citizen housing complex at Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Road will also go to public hearing.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church plans to build a three-storey building of three storeys plus basement on the 1.7-acre site. The building will have four wings and a central service area.

There will be 62 suites. Fifty will be single rooms, four will be doubles and eight will be single rooms for handicapped people.

The central service area will contain a lounge, a dining room and space for music, hobby, meeting, games and smoking rooms.

In other business on Monday the council also voted to hold a public hearing on an application by A. S. Bains Developments Ltd. to build a two-storey warehouse-office complex of about 31,000 square feet at 3318 Oak.

A public hearing will also be held on an application by Jim Duncan to construct a 19-suite apartment building on the corner of Inverness and Glasgow. The building would contain 16 one-bedroom units and three two-bedroom units.

Wave of Alcoholism Engulfing Britain

family

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain may be entering a new wave of alcoholism comparable to the gin and beer eras of the mid-18th and mid-19th centuries.

In a paper, amusing and grim at the same time, read at a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Medicine, Dr. Max Glatt noted that the English have been hard drinkers since pre-Christian Britons brawled after downing fermented brews of barley, honey and apples.

Glatt, head of the alcoholism and drug dependence unit at St. Bernard's Hospital in Southhall, London, said drink is again becoming a serious social problem here, although 25 years ago alcoholism was considered all but conquered.

Now, "the frightening spectre of the million alcoholics looms on the near horizon." Britain has a population of 55.5 million.

He said there are no field studies of the problem, but cited several "indirect indices" which show that the drink problem is rising rapidly. It was rising through the '60s as well, but then the public were too much preoccupied by drug misuse and dependence among the young to notice.

There were 48,000 drunkenness convictions in 1950, but these had risen to 104,452 by 1975. Offenders under 21 years of age more than trebled, rising from 6,600 in 1959 to 20,150 in 1974.

Prosecutions for drunken driving rose to 70,000 in 1974 from 5,700 in 1959. Admissions to hospital for alcoholism or alcohol-related problems rose to 12,250 in 1973 from 439 in 1949.

Consumption of spirits more than trebled from 1951-52 to 1974, rising from 9.5 million proof gallons to more than 33 million.

A report by the National Council on Alcoholism, published in January, showed that excessive drinking is a bigger threat to British industry than industrial action. A report last October by the National Council of Women said one of every three British alcoholics is a woman. Ten years ago the ratio was one in eight.

Glatt did not compare his findings with conditions in other countries though press reports indicate many have similar problems.

He did, however, compare the present with other periods of British history.

Glatt catalogued a list of quotations which show that the British have been known for hard drinking throughout recorded history. In the sixth century, church decrees deprived monks "whose speech had got thick through overindulgence" of their supper.

A 12th-century letter said that "the constant habit of drinking has made the English famous among all foreign nations."

However, he identified the period 1720-50 as the "first wave of alcoholism," after restrictions on the sale of gin had been lifted and retailers promised customers they could "get drunk for a penny, dead drunk for twopence."

The "second wave" was 1830-1890, after the Duke of Wellington's Beer House Act of 1830 permitted anyone to retail beer after taking out a licence.

"Everybody is drunk," wrote an observer at the time. "Those who are not singing are sprawling. The sovereign people are in a beastly state."

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS
. . . it tells you how

Dandelions and their cousin—chicory—are two of the easiest wild greens to handle this way. Dig their roots during the fall, replant them in a box of dirt and leave the container outside until after the first frost (to fool the plants into thinking that winter has passed). Then bring the container inside, keep it watered and try to maintain the box's temperature at around 55° F in a semidark spot (a cellar provides near-ideal light and temperature conditions). In about 20 to 30 days you should be able to start gathering crisp, pale, blanched leaves that go well in any salad.

Continue watering the dandelion and chicory roots, and they'll produce several cuttings of greenery. When the first box starts to taper off, you can bring in another and then another (if you've been clever enough to have them waiting outside) and extend your harvest right on through the winter.

No Retirement Regrets After 39 Years on Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Public servant Fenton Telford left the national revenue department after 39 years of service at age 62 and says he has had no regrets since.

"I liked my work," he said. "But I had passed the 35-year qualifying mark of service that qualified me for full superannuation, and I sat down one day to assess the situation."

With a difference of only $50 between his salary and his pension if he retired, Telford calculated it was costing him more in clothing bills, lunches and transportation to continue to work.

"I wanted to travel to Europe," he said. "I wanted to spend more time in volunteer work and with my interests in historic Ottawt and documentary films — so I opted for retirement at age 60 and I've never had a twinge of regret since."

Telford was scheduled to return in the fall of 1964, but as he left his post of administration of sales taxes he was given the job of executive secretary during a two-year merging of two staff associations.

Following a month's retirement leave at the end of this work, he has worked with the Civil Service Association of Canada, the Ottawa Film Council, the Central Volunteer Bureau and has guided groups through the Fraser School House for Heritage Ottawa.

The major proportion of his work since his retirement has been his volunteer job as secretary-treasurer of the Ottawa-Hull branch of the Federal Superannuates National Association (FSNA).

Since its beginnings in 1963, the organization has been working to see that retired public servants are properly taken care of despite inflation.

To help keep up with the increasing cost of living, the organization is asking the government to index superannuation pensions as it has already indexed Canada Pensions and old age security.

It is also working for a better deal for widows, who now receive only half of the husband's pension upon his death, and lose it when they remarry.

TASTY CRUMPET IN DEEP TROUBLE

LONDON (CP) — That bastion of English tea-time, the crumpet, is in trouble.

William Tilley, grandson of the inventor and managing director of Tilley's Crumpets, has announced the factory will shut for good within 60 days. He blames union difficulties.

It was around 1900 when Tilley's grandfather first introduced the crumpet to a receptive world from a handcart in Cheltenham.

It caught on and he opened a factory which now employs 40 full-time and 40 part-time workers, nearly all of them women.

However, about two weeks ago 20 women were laid off and 20 others went on strike. The other 40, members of a different union, continued to work.

The bakers' union is unhappy with the Transport and General Workers' Union and, says Tilley—"There is no point in carrying on with things the way they are."

Joe Roberts, TGWU representative and a man who likes his crumpet, says, "It will be a great shame if the factory closes."

"But I am sure some other firm will take it over and perhaps they will be better employers."

Canadians in all parts of Canada are raising rabbits, mainly because these furry animals are well suited for production under domestic conditions.

If you are interested in raising rabbits for consumption, wool or as show animals, you will want to read the 28-page illustrated booklet Raising Rabbits. It stresses that if you want to raise rabbits commercially, you should locate a market for your production before you start your operation. You should not spend money on buildings to house your rabbits or on breeding animals before you are sure you are going to sell your production throughout the year.

Before you decide on the breed to buy, you will have to know if you want to specialize in meat or wool rabbits or in fancy stock.

The book explains how to construct rabbit hutches and how to arrange the cages. There is also detailed information about feeding equipment. If you want fast-growth and healthy animals, a sound feeding program is a must.

Under ideal conditions, rabbits can produce four litters of seven or eight little ones a year. With proper care a rabbit reaches its ideal fryer weight of four to five pounds after about nine weeks, and its dressed weight would be between two to three pounds. A dressed roaster usually weighs more than three pounds.

The booklet offers lots of additional information and advice for those who contemplate raising rabbits.

Send your request with your name, address and postal zone to: Distribution Unit, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 0C7. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

OFF THE WALL

Louise DeGrave

You never really know a person until you see him under extreme stress.

Take my husband, Ralph, for example.

Now, after almost seven years of marriage, I thought he was the Rock of Gibraltar. I used to stand by in open-mouthed amazement as he unflinchingly performed feats of daring, like stopping midway up a steep hill in a stick-shift car, or lighting the pilot light on the water heater, or driving in Los Angeles on a Saturday night.

That was, of course, until the arrival of Ben.

We were sitting there at the dinner table one night when Ralph looked into the kitchen and suddenly froze rigor-mortisly. Realizing he'd had a stroke, I got up to call his disability insurance carrier.

In my mind I immediately pictured a massive, 10-pound creature with a sneer on its face and a long, filthy tail hanging in my leftover gravy.

I peered cautiously around the corner into the kitchen. Perched on the stove looking over my eggplant casserole was the cutest little brown mouse I'd ever seen.

Snowball resided in a cage in the living room that I cleaned once every six months whether it needed it or not, dousing the cage between cleanings with Apple Blossom perfume. (Twenty-nine cents a gallon.)

He thrived on my father's French cooking, developing a particular fondness for lobster newburg and for poulet en cocotte bonne femme, saved from my plate and served in Chock-Full-o'Nuts measuring cups.

Three years later, however, my father, driven cumulatively wild by the smell of Apple Blossom and Snowball droppings and the incessant sound of a squeaky exercise wheel in the living room, opted to have Snowball dropped from the family circle.

So I was pleased to see Ben. He provided companionship when Ralph worked late and provided an incentive for Ralph to clean up after himself in the kitchen, to which he was otherwise morally opposed.

But Snowball had at least had the decency to stay in his cage and not leave droppings in my silverware drawer or gnaw on my dishtowels.

I came home one night to find Ralph hyperventilating in the shower stall after Ben had wandered casually out of the living room heat register and walked over Ralph's foot en route to the kitchen.

"This mouse," said Ralph later, "has chutzpah."

A veritable banquet of Ben's favorite foods was arranged in mousetraps so that his last meal would be a good one.

But on the day that Ben succumbed, there was no consoling me, even as I took the silverware tray and dishtowels from temporary storage in the refrigerator and put them back in their usual drawers.

Ralph, however, was transformed. The tic in his eye was gone for the first time in 10 days and all signs of palsy had disappeared.

"I never knew you were so afraid of rodents," I said to Ralph. "I hope this will make you more sympathetic in the future to MY fears."

"But yours are irrational," said Ralph.

EX-CLERK AT 67 FIT AS IF 20

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Former city clerk Roy Barrand, who jogs 30 miles a week and skis cross-country another 30 miles a week in season, can challenge any 60-year-old Swede in physical fitness.

David Peters, an official at Fit-Test Centre, said the 67-year-old has the physical conditioning of a 20-year-old.

"He's simply amazing," said Peters.

Barrand, who was tested with sit-ups, bending exercises, 12 minutes on the stationary bicycle and step-ups, did not show a bead of perspiration.

The cardio-vascular reading taken after the stint on the bicycle was 52.06 millimetres per kilogram of body weight per minute. A desirable rating is 35 millimetres and the average rating of a National Hockey League player is 55 millimetres.

Barrand's body-fat figure was 12 per cent, which was below the acceptable rating of 13 per cent.

In the flexibility test, a reading between 140 and 150 degrees is good but Barrand scored a perfect 180.

For Barrand, the testing just confirmed what he was believed since he started jogging eight years ago.

"I weighed 175 pounds and felt terrible," he said, "I had lower-back problems and then there was the aging process."

He said his hearing and sight have improved since he became physically active.

New Delhi a Mecca For Truant Youth

NEW DELHI (CP) — India's national capital has become a magnet for truant children.

Every month dozens of them run away from their homes in the hope of finding adventure.

Police said he read a story in a magazine on how a group of young men had robbed a bank of $60,000. He said later: "I thought I could do a similar thing."

The boy has been sent back to his parents. He was found by a policewoman almost on the verge of death on a sidewalk in the walled city of Delhi, the ancient part of the capital.

Since the beginning of this year nearly 300 missing children have been rounded up by police and restored to their parents. One report said some 800 youngsters from all over India are still untraced.

In a single day, police rounded up 64 missing children. One girl said she planned to become a "national politician."

An "observastion house" has been opened to care for the children. Some of them say they do not wish to go home.

Don't Be Confused ... Ask Your Doctor

your health

By LESTER COLMAN, M. D.

I have no stones in my gallbladder. Yet my doctor wants me to have my gallbladder removed. I don't understand it.—Mrs. K. J., La.

Dear Mrs. J.:

You would have understood it had you pinned your doctor down for an explanation. I don't know why patients leave my office or the office of their own doctor in a state of confusion about their problems and the plans for treatment.

Such confusion serves only to disrupt the valuable relationship between doctors and their patients who then seek other sources for the information they rightly deserve. Now, back to your gallbladder.

Even in the absence of stones, the gallbladder can become distended and the lining swollen, thickened and inflamed. Bacteria can set up housekeeping and the infection may produce all of the symptoms that are caused by stones.

When this occurs, the free flow of bile into the intestine is impaired. Consequently, there may be a blockage of bile—so important for the digestion of all foods—and fat particularly in the gallbladder.

Surgery for chronic infection of the gallbladder, even in the absence of stones, is very often the ideal choice for the relief of symptoms.

My heart very often gives a few extra beats. It scares me near to death. I know I'm nervous, but this makes me more so.—Mrs. S, F., Tex.

Dear Mrs. F.:

Normally, the heart beats with a regular rhythm, with fixed intervals of rest between each beat. Occasionally, this rhythm is thrown off. The extra beats occur and produce the sensation you describe.

Until reassured by their doctor, many people become as anxious as you are. They almost always say, "My heart jumped into my mouth," to describe that fluttering feeling.

Fatigue, emotional stress, overindulgence in tobacco and alcohol may be the causes of these extra beats, or extra "systoles," as they are known.

A routine examination and an electrocardiogram will assure you that these do not indicate heart damage or heart disease.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . No one ever expects to fall asleep with a lighted cigarette in his hand.

Would you guess that more consumers complain about warranties on just-purchased appliances than do about the natural operating sounds of the appliances? If you say warranties, you're wrong! Noise complaints are four times greater than warranty complaints, says the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel. That might be a warning to listen to a refrigerator's "purring" before you buy it and have to put up with a noise you didn't expect. After all, you listen to an auto's engine before you buy it, don't you?

Mother Deserves, Needs a Night Out

DEAR ABBY: We are just ordinary people. My husband has a 9 to 5 job and I am only a housewife. We have been married for 10 years and in all that time we have never gone anywhere without taking our children. (We have three.) I have never had one night away from home except those few when I went to the hospital to have another baby.

We have never hired a sitter. Never needed one. My husband said the children grow up so fast we should enjoy every moment we can with them. I love my children, Abby, but don't you think I deserve a night out without the children just once a year?—STALEMATE

DEAR MATE: Your husband forgets that you "enjoy" your children all day, every day when he is at work. Remind him. You not only "deserve" an occasional night out, you NEED one.

DEAR ABBY: I'm about the most mixed-up bride you've ever heard from. Our wedding date has been set and the plans are being made, but right now all I want to do is run! Jerry is a wonderful young man and I should be thrilled to get him, but now I'm sorry I ever said yes.

Here are some examples of why I am not sure I want to marry him. My mother says they are childish, so please tell me what you think.

1. All in fun, I threw Jerry in the pool and found out he couldn't swim! (I had to rescue him.) Abby, shouldn't he have told me? And here's a man who loves sailing and fishing.

2. His family likes to hug and kiss me. I'm not a cold person, but I don't like all that hugging and kissing on saying hello and goodbye.

3. Jerry's job will require more and more travelling. I suppose I could go with him, but what if I can't? I'm afraid to stay alone.

4. Jerry likes children, and I'm not sure I want any. (I'm really afraid of childbirth because of a movie I saw years ago.)

What should I do? I really love Jerry. I'm 22, a college graduate, but I don't want to take a job. Is it too late to back out? — NOT READY.

DEAR NOT: Your solution is in your signature. You are NOT ready for marriage. Call it off, and the sooner the better.

DEAR ABBY: A man from the cemetery has been going around selling lots and monuments. I would like to know if I really have to put the date and year of my birth on the monument. I don't think it's anybody's business. — LIKES MY PRIVACY

DEAR LIKES: It is customary to place the dates of birth and death on a monument, but there is no law that compels you to do so.

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

DEAR LYNN AND JOEL: I have recently purchased a beautiful weeping fig tree (Ficus Benkamina) and although it did very well the first few weeks, it's now beginning to lose its leaves at a very rapid pace. Rather than describe the conditions I've got it in or the way I'm caring for it, I'd rather you tell me how to care for it and see if I'm doing something wrong. It's a very large tree, about five feet, and was very expensive, so I'd certainly hate to lose it. Thanks. — D.B.

DEAR D.B.: First things first. Practically all Ficus Benjaminas lose their leaves during the winter months and don't begin to come back until spring. If you keep it in a good, bright spot, water when it begins to dry out and feed it regularly, by May all the leaves should return. It may even sprout little teeny figlets.

Unfortunately, a tree the size you describe is probably too heavy to carry in and out, but if it's at all possible, it wouldn't hurt to put it outside as soom as the weather is mild and let it sit for about a month while it begins its period of regeneration.

Thanks for writing, because you've enabled us to answer dozens of almost identical letters we've received the past few weeks from other weeping owners of weeping figs.

Metal Firms' Lockout Ruled Legal by LRB

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Labor Relations Board Monday declared legal the metal industries association lockout of striking members of the United Steelworkers of America.

MIA sought the ruling after one member refused to participate in the strike-lockout that has idled 1,200 USWA members at 38 Vancouver-area foundries for more than four weeks. MIA also is attempting to get an injunction against Letson and Burpee Ltd.

Meanwhile, Local 1 of the Canadian Association of Mechanical and Allied Workers, reached a settlement at Mainland Foundry and Engineering Ltd.

Union spokesman Ed Ironside said the 100 employees will receive a six per cent wage increase, bringing the base rate to $8.47 an hour from $8.08 and the journeyman's rate to $9.63 from $9.23 over one year. He said the settlement also contains a cost-of-living adjustment which comes into effect if the consumer price index climbs above six per cent. Also included are improved vacations and full company contributions to a health and dental plan, Ironside said.

In Trail, meanwhile, negotiations were to continue today between Cominco and two unions representing about 5,200 workers.

The two sides bargained for 15 hours Sunday and talks resumed Monday, when the company retired to consider a union proposal, details of which were kept secret.

The talks averted a strike which had been called for Monday. As a result of the talks, the unions have agreed to give four days' notice of a strike if bargaining breaks down. Cominco has guaranteed to pay all workers during the four days.

Strike notice was issued Thursday by the United Steelworkers of America, representing 4,600 workers, and the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees, representing 585 workers.

Negotiations stalled last week after union bargaining committee members termed Cominco's last offer "a slap in the face."

Cominco said it made a package offer of wages and other benefits in a two-year agreement that is close to the federal Anti-Inflation Board guidelines of six per cent the first year and four per cent the second.

B.C. Ys Seek Budget Cut

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The B.C. Young Men's-Young Women's Christian Association (YM-YWCA) council decided here last weekend to seek a 17-per-cent budget cut at the YWCA of Canada convention in Quebec City, later this month.

Bill Skinner, of the Victoria YM-YWCA said the amount raised from local Ys last year fell short of the budget by 17 per cent or $55,000.

"We should reduce the '78 budget to what in fact the associations are paying," said Skinner.

Meanwhile, the council decided not to place a document calling for amalgamation of the YMCA and the YWCA on the convention agenda.

The proposal from the New Westminster YM-YWCA will be presented to the convention "just as an educational paper for straight discussion purposes," council secretary Roy McKelvie said Sunday.

About 60 people from YMCAs and YM-YWCAs across B.C. and the Yukon met to decide what resolutions to present to the national YWCA convention May 29 to June 3.

BRIDGE STOPPED FOR TROUT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial highways department will not construct a new bridge at Gerrard in the West Kootenays that could have damaged a unique population of giant trout, information officer Ray Baines says.

The bridge was proposed for the Lardeau River because Kootenay Forest Products Ltd. wanted easy highway access from its logging operations in the Trout Lake area to its plant at Nelson.

A wooden bridge about 40 years old now spans the river at Gerrard about 70 miles north of Nelson. It is in poor condition and unsafe for logging trucks.

A barge will be used to transport logs across Trout Lake so that any further use of the old bridge will be avoided.

"The highways department will supply the barge and the logging company will provide the tug," said Baines. "Eventually, we'll probably build an alternative road around Trout Lake that will eliminate any need for a new bridge."

Dr. Gordon Hartman, director of the fish and wildlife branch, said he was pleased with the decision not to construct a new bridge.

He said that the old Gerrard bridge will probably be unsafe for any kind of traffic in two or three years so construction of the new road should be started as soon as possible.

GOV'T CHARGES 7 VW DEALERS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Seven Volkswagen car dealers have been charged under the Combines Act with conspiracy to prohibit or lessen competition of the sale or supply of Volkswagen parts in Greater Vancouver.

Wetmore Motors Ltd., Volkswagen Pacific Sales and Service (1973) Ltd., Guildford Motors Ltd., Clarkdale Motors Ltd., Capilano Volkswagen Ltd. Westminster Volkswagen (1975) Ltd., and Cowell Motors Ltd. are charged that between Sept. 1, 1974 and Nov. 1, 1975, they conspired to lessen the competition of the sale or supply of Volkswagen parts in Greater Vancouver.

The information was sworn by William Douglas Kemp of the federal consumer and corporate affairs ministry.

The companies are to appear in court May 26.

Matsqui Conflict Probe Sparked by News Stories

MATSQUI (CP) — Mayor Harry De Jong said Monday that newspaper stories prompted council to ask for a formal inquiry into questions of conflict of interest involving a $260,000 real estate profit by two municipal employees.

De Jong told the opening day of the inquiry that a cloud of suspicion hung over the employees and the municipality as a result of the stories, despite an earlier conclusion by council that no conflict of interest existed.

The inquiry is being held into the 1974 purchase for $170,000 of 18 acres next to Matsqui Prison. The purchase was made by M.S.A. Development, a company owned by municipal treasurer Bruce McIntyre and public works foreman David Laxton, two days before council approved a sewer extension to the area. In May, 1976, the tract was sold for $430,000.

De Jong told the inuiry that senior officials of the district come under the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act, which came into effect in 1974. He said there had always been an understanding between council and employees that any land dealings by employees should be disclosed.

The policy was not written anywhere he knew of, De Jong said, but had been mentioned several times in council and committee meetings and could be part of minutes taken on those occasions.

It will examine any involvement of council members, officials or employees of the district of Matsqui, directly or indirectly, in land transactions within the municipality, and whether any member of the council, official or employee used privileged information for private advantage.

Hood said the inquiry would also consider an August, 1976, incident involving a well-drilling operation.

Jury Picked For Lengthy Drug Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jurors were selected Monday to hear what might be one of the longest and most expensive criminal trials in British Columbia's recent history.

It has already involved a nine-month preliminary hearing, at an estimated cost of $1.8 million.

The nine-man, three-woman jury was chosen during a 3½-hour session in which about half of the 336 present were scrutinized by Crown and defence counsel.

The jury will hear the county court trial of 14 persons accused of conspiring to traffic in heroin.

Judge A. A. McDonell excused the jury until June 30, during which time he will consider questions of admissability of evidence.

Crown counsel indicated two to three months would be needed for this portion of the trial and the judge set Aug. 22 as the tentative date for jury recall.

The trial could last more than a year and costs are estimated by court officials at $2.5 million.

B.C. Rail Hearings Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Commission into the British Columbia Railway will hold hearings at six cities along the B.C. Rail route next month.

A commission spokesman said Monday that more than 25 organizations and individuals are scheduled to present briefs to the commission at hearings in Squamish, June 6-7, Lillooet June 8, Williams Lake June 9-10, Quesnel June 11, Prince George June 13-15, and Fort St. John June 16-17.

Commission chairman Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie, commissioners Dave Chapman and Syd Welsh and their staff will cover most of the tour via the scheduled B.C. Rail dayliner.

The commission, appointed by premier Bill Bennett to look at all facets of the provincially-owned railway's operation, resumes hearings in Vancouver Wednesday.

Commission counsel Martin Taylor said the Vancouver session, scheduled to end May 27, will open with several days of evidence from B.C. Rail staff about the railway's history, organization, financing and development plans.

SIKHS AIDED

DELTA (CP) — Council promised Monday to search for a more suitable site for a proposed Sikh Temple after rejecting a 1.9-acre parcel sought by the congregation of 2,000. A 458-name petition said use of the site would result in noise and traffic problems. The Sikhs were given permission to repair a temple damaged by fire earlier this year until a new site is found in this municipality south of Vancouver.

Bank Critic Is Now a Fugitive

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP — James McCann, a fugitive since Thursday when he was sentenced in provincial court to 60 days in jail for contempt, said in a telephone interview Monday that he keeps moving to avoid arrest.

Judge Leslie McDonald also ordered police to seize McCann's placard-covered bus, which he had used to criticize the lending policies of the Bank of Montreal. Police have not found that either.

McCann's lawyer is preparinga n appeal of McDonald's order on procedural grounds.

The bench warrant and McCann's evasive action are the latest developments in a four-month confrontation between the bank and the man who took it upon himself to side with Greek Canadians who said they were treated unfairly by the bank's main branch in New Westminster.

On two previous occasions McDonald, in response to the bank's requests, ordered McCann to stop protesting and remove the signs from the bus.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal, which came up in a duplicate game, was a well-bid one. The play by the defenders was also excellent. But as to whether declarer played the hand correctly is a moot question; and if the result can serve as the criterion, his play left something to be desired.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
3 ♡	4 ♠	Pass	5 ◇
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡.

After ruffing his opening heart lead, declarer cashed three top trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. He then led a diamond, finessing dummy's queen. With nonchalance, East followed suit with the seven, allowing dummy's queen to win.

Declarer next returned to his own hand via the ace of clubs, and led his remaining diamond. When West played low, declarer confidently inserted dummy's jack. East, perforce, took the trick with his king, and exited with a heart. Eventually South had to lose a club trick. And so he went down to defeat.

East's refusal to win his diamond king on the initial lead of this suit was a calculated risk. He knew that if he took it, declarer would have aguaranteed contract, since all of dummy's remaining diamonds would be winners. As it turned out, his risky, deceptive play paid a nice dividend.

Now to declarer's play. Had this been a rubber-bridge game, declarer's second diamond finesse would have been absolutlely wrong. After winning the queen, all he had to do (after cashing the ace, to possibly drop the king, which he would have done) was to lead a club and finesse his jack. Whether it won or lost, his only loser would be a club. In the actual setup, with the club finesse being successful, he would have made all 13 tricks (which also would have been made in the actual setup by the cashing of the diamond ace).

But the game was duplicate bridge, in which game an overtrick is of major importance. With the diamond finesse being successful, if West had been dealt the tripleton K-x-x of diamonds, then all of dummy's diamonds would be winners after a second diamond finesse was successful. On this day, declarer was wrong. But tomorrow, who knows?

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, May 4

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Highlight spiritual qualities, need and ability to publish, advertise, write and communicate. Education, travel are on agenda. You bring you into focus. You get a good look at you. Answers are within. Plan ahead. Make contacts, bridge generation gap, look beyond scenes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Involvement, intensified relationship, contacts with young persons are featured. Gemini, Virgo individuals are in picture. Organize, bring prioritie up front. You can handle more responsibility and reward potential will be increased. If single, marital status is due to change.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low, play waiting game. Judgment, intuition could be slightly off base. Know it and avoid direct confrontation. Emphasis on co-operative effort, public relations, legal papers, partnership, marriage. You finish important project and get rid of burden. Aries is involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make new start — be independent, original, stick to beliefs, principles. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Accent work procedures, health, special services, fulfilling resolution concerning diet, nutrition. Member of opposite sex is drawn to you and makes no secret of it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good Moon aspect now coincides with creativity, love, change. Follow through on hunch. Intuitive intellect is honed to razor-sharpness. Cancer, Leo and Aquarius persons people your personal scenario. Yes, it could be love!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on practicality, property, security, knowing why you're here and what to do about it. Diversify. Make inquiries. Be flexible. Experiment. Expand horizons. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles. You'll get offer. — don't sell yourself short.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message. Be aware of details, fine points, ted tape, officialdom. Short trip, involving close neighbor or relative, is likely to be featured. Mail, messages, calls and a stubborn Taurus are on agenda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on what you pay, receive, basic values, defining of terms. Gemini, Virgo persons participate — what was lost can be located, recovered. Member of opposite sex plays in prominent role. You'll be in vortex of change, travel, variety.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You're capable now of taking steps leading to greater security. Bargains associated with home, comforts are available. You are reunited with loved one — cycle is high and you are at right place at propitious time. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dream can be prophetic. You find answers, are capable of obtaining privileged information. The number "7" figures in important ways. Visit to one confined to home or hospital could be on your schedule.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on what you want as contrasted to actual need. Have basic material at hand. Outline qualifications. In personal area, you re-establish relationship which had been drifting. Capricorn, Cancer persons play key roles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Conflict may exist between current and past activities. Means you could be carrying over an obligation which should have been dismissed. Clarify goal. Bring objective into focus. One in position of authority will give green light for your greater progress.

IF MAY 4th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are loyal, steadfast, unorthodox, were separated physically or psychologically from one or both parents at an early age. You make major domestic adjustment this year, which could include marriage, change of residence. November and February will prove to be your most memorable months of 1977. Aquarius, [illegible] persons play important roles in your life. You are attractive to opposite sex. You learn rules but you often break them.

Lawson Suing CKNW for Libel

VANCOUVER — Senator Ed Lawson, director of the Canadian Conference of Teamsters, has launched a libel suit against radio station CKNW in connection with a news story broadcast February 17.

In a writ filed Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court in Vancouver, Lawson charges that what was said in the New Westminster station's broadcast was false and libelous and damaged his reputation.

Lawson charges the words used were meant and were understood to mean that he had been charged with a criminal offence involving the misuse of union funds.

Lawson is seeking general damages and costs. No date for hearing the suit has been set.

Meanwhile, Surrey mayor Ed McKitka and radio talk show host Ed Murphy have completed payment of a libel judgment of about $18,000 after being faced with possible court action to seize their properties.

Lawyer A. G. MacKinnon, acting for Surrey engineer Herbert L. Fritz and his son, Daniel, planned the property move after earlier efforts to garnishee the salaries of McKitka and Murphy ran into complications.

McKitka had contended that a mayor's pay was not subject to a garnishee order. The judgment for libel was handed down Jan. 21.

MARGARET'S PHOTOS ARE SHOWN

Star-Trek Movie Still In Orbit

LOS ANGELES — Delays in the long-awaited Star Trek motion picture are resulting from problems with writing a script that will not disappoint fans of the television series, says creator Gene Roddenberry.

Paramount Pictures will decide in September whether to make the movie, says executive producer Gerald Isenberg.

Production might begin in November or December with an anticipated release date of Christmas, 1978, he said recently.

The series' 75 episodes were shown on NBC between Sept. 6, 1966, and Sept. 2, 1969, before the network cancelled the series because of low ratings.

But Paramount has syndicated the voyages of the starship Enterprise — and the studio says many foreign TV stations now carry the series, with high ratings.

Two years ago, Paramount wanted a movie script and it turned to Roddenberry, 55, a writer-producer who owns one-third of the Star Trek enterprises.

But Isenberg said Roddenberry's script read too much like a TV episode. Writers Chris Bryant and Allan Scott were hired.

ELVIS SUED

MEMPHIS — Three men filed a $150,000 damage suit against Elvis Presley accusing the singer of pulling out of a company set up to build handball and racquetball courts in Memphis and Nashville. The suit also says Presley had agreed to lend money to get the business under way but did not do so.

JUDGE RETIRED

SAN FRANCISCO — An elderly California Supreme Court justice who often slept during hearings and once wore a Shirley Temple wig in the courtroom has been retired by a special tribunal on grounds of senility.

A seven-member panel, made up of state Court of Appeal justices, Monday ordered the retirement of Marshall McComb, 82, appointed a justice in 1956.

It was the first time in California history that a Supreme Court justice was ordered removed from the bench.

He will receive an annual pension of about $30,000.

ROLLING STONE

By CHARLES YOUNG

Bob Marley got an unhappy 32nd birthday present from a London court when he was fined 50 pounds on two charges of possessing marijuana. Wailer guitarist Aston Barrat was fined 25 pounds on one charge of possession. Marley and Barrat had been arrested after their car was stopped by London police.

Marley had been living in London on and off for the past three months while working on a new album Exodus. His presence had been a well-kept secret until the drug conviction. Exodus, which features new Wailer Junior Kerr, is reported to be half political songs and half love songs. The album is scheduled for May release with U.S. tour following in July.

Linda Ronstadt attended the CBGB for the second time (her first visit to the New York rock club was to hear the punk band Television to check out The Ramones, and she didn't like the punkers one bit. "I couldn't understand the words," she complained after walking out in the middle of their set. "I like power, but it has to have some intelligence. This was so constricted that I would call it hemorrhoid music. They are one very small part of what Mick Jagger started."

The Beatles and Apple Corp. have lost a battle in the English High Court to stop the release in Britain of an album recorded live by the group in Hamburg in 1962. The double record set, entitled Live! At the Star Club, Hamburg, Germany 1962, contains 26 tracks, 13 of which have never appeared before on a record by the Beatles.

It includes such titles as To Know Her Is to Love Her, Falling In Love Again, Your Feet's Too Big and Lend Me Your Comb.

The album was recorded by Ted Taylor, a Lancashire butcher whose group, The Dominos, was appearing at the Star Club at the same time as the Beatles.

According to an affadavit from Taylor, the Beatles had agreed to his taping their act with the words, "It's OK by us, Ted, but you get the beer in."

Taylor kept the tapes, which finally surfaced in 1974 in the hands of former Beatle manager Alan Williams and Paul Murphy, president of Lingasong Records. Murphy has spent 50,000 pounds preparing the tapes for commercial release. He claims to have offered the Beatles royalties.

The Beatles and Apple had argued that they had not given their consent and that issue of the records would be an infringement of their rights. The court ruled that they had done nothing to try to stop the release until April of this year, though they had known about it before.

"Live" will now go on sale in British record shops within a month, neatly coinciding with EMI's release of a double album of the Beatles live at the Hollywood Bowl recorded in 1964 and 1965. EMI is reported to be spending 200,000 pounds to promote the album.

Murphy and Williams gave each other platinum records the day before the trial at a press luncheon they had billed as "the most important announcement in British pop history."

★ ★ ★

When Chaka Khan came to Mikel's, a New York jazz club, to hear John Tropea, owner Mike Mikell showed her to a table, but a few minutes later she had disappeared. After a quick search of the room, he found her in the kitchen wiping down the counters. "I told her we hire people to do that," said Mikell. "She said she really enjoys doing housework and misses it when she's on the road. Then she asked me if she could wash out two coffee pots."

After half an hour or so, Chaka traded in her dishrag for a set of drums on the bandstand and turned in a hot performance during the jam.

Biggest party of the week was a reception for Utopia, Todd Rundgren's current band, at Carlos and Charlie's in Los Angeles.

"My CA is more than an auditor... he helps in all aspects of my business."

Lloyd Hoole, Director, East Kootenay Broadcasting Company Limited, Cranbrook, B.C.

"Over the years our Chartered Accountant has helped in almost all facets of our business. A principal function is the annual audit which he undertakes to certify the financial position of our companies. We have also called on him to assist in the acquisition or start-up of companies in other fields of endeavour. In addition, our CA has been invaluable in such internal functions as the selection and employment of personnel, the development and improvement of our internal accounting and reporting systems, budgetary control, the re-organization of the share structures of our companies and the related and complex tax planning. Our CA also supervised the installation of electronic data processing systems to provide us with monthly financial information.

"Our business interests would not be in the healthy state they are today without the aid and advice of a Chartered Accountant."

1 BIRTHS

BOCKING — Michael and Linda are proud to announce the birth of their son, Shaun Michael, 10 lbs. 7 ozs., on April 7, 1977, a brother for Jennifer. Many thanks to Dr. Peck and the maternity staff at Victoria General Hospital.

CRAWFORD — Born April 29, 1977, by great teamwork, an 8 lb. 5 oz. linebacker, Andrew James. All-star team members were: quarterback, Cathy; coach, Jim; speciality team phsicians, Drs. Critchley, Morrison and Wickert; nurse, Miss J. MacIver (ably backed by all the other R.J.H. maternity squad) and pre-game strategist Mrs. Vicky Kuhl (Lamaze method). Great job, see you next season!

HAVERTY — Born to David and Janet, a boy, Brent William, 7 lbs., 3 ozs., on April 28, 1977. Thanks to Dr. Heard, Dr. Ripington, and maternity staff at Victoria General Hospital.

MORRISON — Born to Bill and Lesley (nee Massa), on April 27, 1977, a beautiful baby girl, Mary Joan, 7 lbs. 9 ozs. Thanks to Doctors Fonger, Ripington and Willis and maternity staff at Royal Jubilee. (Insured).

ORR — Born to Bob and Patti, on April 22, 1977, at Royal Jubilee Hospital, a girl, Tara Leah, 7 lbs. 7 ozs. Thanks to Dr. R. N. Young and maternity staff.

OPERATION SUCCESS — Nine months ago Carol and John MacDonald put the plan into action, after many secret meetings with Dr. Laing. Carol went into hiding in the Victoria General. Many nurses were called into the conference room and it was decided to move across the hall; after much contemplation and work, operation success was achieved. The hidden one came out, Christopher James, April 28, 1977, 7 lbs. 12 ozs.

POWER — Born to Stuart and Michelle, April 25, 1977, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox, a daughter, Tracey Michelle, 9 lbs. 1 oz. First grandchild for Archie and Joan Andres and Mrs. E. Power, Portsmouth, England.

ROGERS—Born on April 29, 1977, to Bob and Kathy, a son, Steven Andrew, 6 lbs., 15 ozs. A brother for Shannon. Many thanks to Dr. Jack Morrison and the staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

WATERMAN — Born to Peter and Vicki (nee Prette), on April 23, 1977, a girl, Kimberley Ann, 7 lbs. 2 ozs.; a darling sister for Kristie. Many thanks to Dr. Heard and maternity staff at Victoria General. (Insured).

Touch of Frost Kills Berries

The most frequent questions on the growing of strawberries are concerned with flowering and fruiting.

Several home gardeners have asked if the flowers with the dark brown or black centres are male flowers because they never seem to produce any berries.

Others would like to know why their plants produce an abundance of flowers and very few fruits. It is interesting to note that most of these questioners add the statement that the plants are well watered and should have a good crop.

Strawberries do not bear separate male and female flowers. The flowers with the dark centres have been damaged, usually by frost, and therefore are unable to produce berries.

There is a substantial difference between the minimum night temperature at the four-foot level (the height at which all official readings are taken) and the temperature at ground level, called the "grass minimum."

On a clear night during the strawberry season, an air temperature of plus 2 Celsius can mean a grass minimum rading of minus 2 to minus 3C. Since this is the temperature at the level of the strawberry blossoms they are subjected to frost conditions which causes the damage.

The average home gardener is not aware of these short frost periods just before sunrise because all indications disappear as soon as the sun is over the horizon, excepting the blackening of the blossoms which becomes evident a day later.

The reproductive organs at the centre of the blossoms are too fragile to withstand low temperatures. Once the stigma and stamens are damaged no fruit can develop.

Partially formed and badly distorted fruits result when part of the blossom is damaged. This can happen to blossoms touching the wet soil on a cool night, or when partly protected with a leaf on a frosty night.

Gardeners who state the plants have been well watered usually admit using an overhead sprinkler. The water landing on the blossoms washes away the ripe pollen and fruits cannot form. The same can happen if heavy showers occur over the period when the pollen is ripe.

As soon as the earliest flowers start to open all overhead watering of the strawberry bed must cease.

From then on, water is applied to the root area only, using a hose with an open end (no nozzle or spinkler attached), or a canvas soaker, and the tap opened just enough to give a gentle trickle.

Water is essential to the production of large, juicy berries, but it must reach under the plants where the roots are, not over the top where it damages the flowers and causes "burning" of the foliage.

IT'S BRAND NEW TO VICTORIA!

At Empress, we have always had confidence with the quality of the used vehicles we sell. And now, to back up that confidence, we are offering the

CROWN SEAL
USED CAR WARRANTY!

The CROWN SEAL sticker on the windshield, identifies our 100 per cent, 30-day TOTAL MECHANICAL WARRANTY — and we really mean TOTAL!

Any mechanical failure during the warranty period will be repaired at no cost to the customer — EMPRESS PAYS 100 PER CENT of the bill — both PARTS and LABOUR!

Because our highly qualified technicans have already given the vehicles a thorough and complete inspection, Empress is able to give every purchaser of a CROWN SEAL WARRANTY vehicle, a warranty certificate, and a signed copy of the inspection report.

WERE 40 NOW 12 NEW HOMES FROM $64,750

A quiet, close to town subdivision — 3 cul-de-sacs to choose from — no-through streets. Not the typical feeling — some level lots, others with lake views or look over surrounding area. Some nestled into trees just like living in the country, yet 5 minutes from town. These homes are priced to sell and going quickly. Consider some of these extra features:

Plane Crash Hospitalizes Family of 4

The spokesman said the plane, with a man, woman and their two children aboard, was reported overdue on a flight to Calgary from the interior region around 5:30 p.m. and a buffalo aircraft from Comox was dispatched following a communications search.

The search and rescue sspokesman said one of the ground parties sent out by Revelstoke RCMP located the crash site around 4:30 a.m. this morning and the crash survivors were helicoptered out in about an hour.

The spokesman said the plane appeared to have made a forced landing on the west bank of the Columbia River about 15 miles south of Revelstoke. He said weather conditions at the probable time of the crash were overcast with a light rainfall.

WOMAN HEADS SWISS GOV'T

BERN (AP) — A woman for the first time assumed Switzerland's highest office Monday, little more than six years after Swiss women won voting rights in the confederation. Lawyer Elisabeth Blunschy, 54, was elected president of the national council, the lower house of parliament.

Marijuana Smokers 'Phoneyer'

TORONTO (AP) — Marijuana smokers who think a joint puts them in closer touch with other people's feelings are victims of the weed's distorting powers, a study indicates.

In a test of warmth, empathy and genuineness, the stoned persons seemed "phoneyer" than those who did not smoke marijuana, a research team reported Monday.

The research team headed by Dr. David Janowski of University of California at San Diego is among the first, he said, to explore interpersonal effects of marijuana. Other studies have tested what happens to intellectual powers and mood under the drug's influence — but not its alteration of friendship or marriage, for instance.

Janowski told a session of the American Psychiatric Association's 130th annual meeting that the researchers matched 20 male mental health workers — all occasional marijuana users — with 20 women who would play the role of troubled partners. Only men can be given marijuana experimentally under federal guidelines.

Each couple held a 25-minute interview, with the woman talking about a difficult time in her life and the man trying to be helpful. Later, the man smoked a cigarette, which in half the cases was marijuana and in the other half an inactive substitute, and held a second 25-minute interview.

Zaire Battles At Border

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — The most bitter fighting of the two-month-old war in Zaire's southern Shaba province has broken out near the Angolan border, the official Zairean news agency AZAP says.

Fighting between government forces and former Katangan secessionists had been sporadic since the rebels crossed into Zaire from Angola March 8 but erupted into "very serious fighting" during the weekend, AZAP reported Monday.

The reports of heavy fighting came as 50 Egyptian pilots and mechanics arrived in Kinshasa following an offer from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Sunday to operate Zaire's "entire air force."

On the diplomatic front, President Mobuto Sese Seko suspended all ties with East Germany for allegedly supplying weapons and ammunition to rebel troops.

Government forces reinforced by 1,500 Moroccan troops have been on the offensive against the rebels since capturing the railway town of Mutshatsha a week ago.

Meanwhile, in Angola the Vietnam-type war between pro-Western guerrillas and the Cuban-supported government of Angola appears to be far more serious than previously realized.

Angolan President Ragostinho Neto gave an indication of the fighting in a May Day speech Sunday that called for the formation of popular defence forces to combat widespread guerrilla attacks.

Laetrile Backers Boo Scientist

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Supporters of using the banned drug laetrile to treat cancer booed and heckled a scientist who called the substance "sugar-coated cyanide."

Dr. John Yarbro, chairman of the department of oncology at the University of Missouri-Columbia and director of Missouri Cancer Programs, was booed Monday at a Federal Drug Administration hearing for saying laetrile was neither safe nor effective.

"This sugar-coated cyanide can kill people," Yarbro said. "I know we want a miracle but there just isn't one.

"The claim that any single chemical substance would be capable of treating, preventing, or controlling all forms of cancer is simplistic, improbable and unfounded."

Laetrile supporters stood and applauded Ernst Krebs, Jr., the leader of a group trying to have the FDA ban lifted, as he espoused the benefits of the substance during the first day of the two-day FDA hearings, ordered by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

Krebs' father was instrumental in promoting the use of laetrile — made from the pits of apricots, peaches and bitter almonds — as an agent in cancer therapy.

Krebs said some medical techniques such as surgery were useful in the treatment of cancer, but he maintained laetrile should be made available.

Dr. George Hill, chairman of the surgery department at Marshall University School of Medicine in West Virginia, testified some of his patients had discontinued more conventional treatment for laetrile, only to return with progressed cases of cancer.

"None of my patients has ever been improved with the use of laetrile," Hill said. "It is ironic to me that at this point in time, this discussion is going on. I believe it is a hoax."

"It is jost too bad that we have to go through court hearings and smuggling raps and the harassment of physicians to reach this point," said Culbert, also editor of the Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy, Inc.

Also on Monday, Florida became the third state in the nation to legalize the use of laetrile—joining Alaska and Indiana.

But one of the few U.S. residents allowed to import the controversial cancer drug laetrile today testified that the drug was responsible for keeping him alive.

"If I lost my laetrile, you would read my obituary in eight to 10 months," Glen L. Rutherford, Conway Springs, Kan., told the hearing.

Cost-Cutting Train Plan Scheduled for Rough Ride

OTTAWA (CP) A less expensive transcontinental passenger train system between central Canada and Vancouver was proposed by the Canadian transport commission Monday.

But questions raised by Transport Minister Otto Lang about the cost of the proposed system indicate the commission's "preferred plan" may undergo considerable change before it is implemented.

The commission's plan retains daily transcontinental service on both Canadian National Railways and CP Rail lines between Vancouver and Winnipeg and makes some service reductions east of Winnipeg to Montreal.

The changes would yield an annual savings of $35 million for the transcontinental service, the commission said. The Montreal - Toronto - Vancouver service lost $85.6 million in 1975. Lang said the commission has leaned toward retaining service to as many communities as possible rather than further reductions that would bring greater savings to taxpayers.

"That, no doubt, is something we will have to look at very carefully before the final plan is in place because the cost to the taxpayer is a relevant factor," he said.

The major commission recommendations:

Transcontinental operations would continue on both main lines in the West but would use only the CP line between Winnipeg and North Bay, Ont., in the slow winter months.

Transcontinental trains would split at North Bay with part going to Toronto on CN tracks and the rest to Montreal on CP lines.

A local service would operate on CN track between Winnipeg and Capreol in Northern Ontario during the slow winter months. Transcontinental trains would run on both CN and CP lines in the busy June-September period.

A new, fast rail passenger service should be operated between Sudbury and Toronto as a $1.6 million, one-year experiment. It would use CP Rail tracks between Sudbury and Parry Sound and CN tracks between Parry Sound and Toronto through Orillia and Barrie.

Sleeping and dining car services should be retained but efforts should be made to reduce costs. Prices should not be raised to cover the entire cost of these services because that would reduce needed passenger business.

The proposed service would use CN Central Station in Montreal, Union Station in Toronto, CP stations from North Bay to Kenora, Ont., CN station in Winnipeg and CP station in Vancouver. Some construction might be necessary at the stations in Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

FAKE ASHES OF ASBESTOS FACE BAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Artificial asbestos ashes used with decorative fireplace sets will be banned within the next few months, a consumer and corporate affairs department official said Monday.

Consumer affairs said new proposals under the Hazardous Products Act will ban the sale of any product containing loose asbestos.

Intake of asbestos fibres into lungs has been associated [illegible]

The department spokesman said the artificial ashes are sprinkled in a sand pan under a simulated log in a gas-jet fireplace.

CASH PROBLEMS STALLING PQ

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Burns, Quebec minister for parliamentary reform, said Monday that financial problems have forced the Parti Quebecois government to postpone "revolutionary" social legislation.

But sweeping health and consumer-protection bills will be tabled in the Quebec national assembly by the end of the year, said Burns who, as PQ house leader and member of a cabinet priorities committee, has a direct say in planning government legislative strategy.

During a two-hour discussion with about 60 students at an English-language junior college, the minister said a budget deficit inherited from the former Liberal government had required the PQ to restrict expenditure growth.

"We had to reorganize the whole situation, be realistic and extra prudent," he said, responding to criticism that the PQ has not lived up to its social-democratic principles since taking power last November.

Couldn't Care Less

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday he could not care less whether Ugandan President Idi Amin attends the Commonwealth leaders conference in London in June.

Answering questions in the Commons, the prime minister also said the question of whether the president, who has been, widely condemned for human rights violations, will go to London should not be over-dramatized.

He said Amin's attendance could cause problems but the collective leadership of more than 30 countries could cope with it. Later, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson told reporters Amin's attendance would be unfortunate.

Both Trudeau and Jamieson were answering questions about meetings Monday with Lord Thomson, special British emissary who is talking with Commonwealth leaders about the agenda of the conference.

Reports from Nairobi say Amin announced Saturday he will attend the conference.

Few Attracted To Laurin Plan

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Camille Laurin, Quebec cultural development minister, tried selling his language policy to the Montreal business community in both English and French on Monday, but found that some of his audience wouldn't buy in either language.

Laurin met a cool reception from the local chapter of the Canadian Club when he told the largely English-speaking membership they were insensitive toward French Quebecers, offering as proof the fact that he had been asked to speak in English.

Less predictably, when the minister moved down the street to deliver his message to the French-speaking Centre des Dirigeants d'Entreprise, he was accused of curtailing English rights while doing nothing to protect the French community.

Restrictions on English proposed in the government's Charter of the French Language "do not fundamentally add anything to the protection of the French, said Jean Brunelle, president of the executives' centre.

"The exclusive use of French will limit the rights of anglophones without in any way contributing to the dignity of the language and liberty of francophones."

Earlier, in his speech to the Canadian Club, Laurin chided senior businessmen for holding Quebec "hostage to their economic preoccupations."

"Is there not a certain abdication of social responsibility to threaten to leave the moment the going gets tough?" he asked.

"Surely profit is not the be-all and end-all of your presence in Quebec."

The fact he had been asked to speak in English illustrated the need for the French Language Charter, he said.

"One sometimes has the impression that English seems to you still your only language, English so often your only milieu."

He added "when Quebecers of all backgrounds are putting their hands to the plough — to identify the new Quebec — senior representatives occasionally would have us hostage to their economic preoccupations."

Conditions Set On IMF Loans

MONTREAL (CP) — Oil-importing developing countries must reduce their balance of payments deficits as a condition for getting newly-approved money from the International Monetary Fund, experts said Monday.

Two former central bank governors and a former U.S. treasury undersecretary told the 670 delegates at the Financial Analysts Federation's international conference that the IMF's role is to help countries in temporary trouble.

The IMF should be cautious about "getting into the business of financing functional and not temporary structural deficits," said Louis Rasminsky, former governor of the Bank of Canada.

Guido Carli, former governor of the Bank of Italy, and Robert Roosa, former American treasury undersecretary, said they agree that the IMF has to develop a surveillance mechanism to make sure the countries receiving aid meet the conditions for such loans.

"I cannot see the IMF as a permanent source of long-term financing," Roosa said.

Federal Finance Minister Donald Macdonald, one of 20 ministers who signed an agreement in Washington last week setting up the special $15-billion IMF fund, said later at a news conference that he disagreed with Rasminsky, Carli and Roosa.

"To talk about putting very tough restraints on the oil-importing developing nations is to talk about imposing very tough conditions on their lives," he said.

Rasminsky, Carli and Rosa were pessimistic about the current world monetary order and agreed that floating exchange rates have solved nothing.

The three agreed that gold has a role as an asset which can be transferred from one central bank to another at market-related prices.

Rasminsky said gold should remain a part of the international monetary system.

"The extent to which gold plays a part will depend on the degree of confidence that the public has in paper currencies," he said.

If this confidence was undermined by inflation, "gold will again come into the forefront of international monetary system."

Carli said the gold standard would never come back but that gold has a place.

'Reddest Rose' Of Labor Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) Harvey Murphy, the British Columbia trade unionist who called himself "the reddest rose in the garden," has died in Toronto at the age of 72.

Murphy, a long-time member of the Communist Party of Canada, was western director and Canadian vice-president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers until it merged with the United Steelworkers of America in 1967.

Following the merger, he was a senior steelworkers official until his retirement a year later.

'Joy to Hear' Singers In Festival

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A piano concerto class at the diploma level that left adjudicator Phyllis Schuldt with little to say other than to express admiration, and a session for singers doing short concert groups which Phyllis Thomson described as "a joy to hear" marked the first day of the second week in the Victoria Music Festival.

There were other highlights too. In the first of the brass, woodwind and band sessions Monday morning, Dr. Robert Cook of Alberta, commented that a group of young woodwind soloists, all under 17, had "made his day." He especially singled out 14-year-old Philip Thompson with a mark of 91 — a mark which he said was much higher than he usually gave.

"I wish I had played as well when I was that age," he commented.

If all that has been reported concerning this festival reads like one long, slightly incredible puff, it only reflects the conclusions of a group of highly competent and discerning adjudicators who have found an exceptional level of talent and teaching throughout all phases of the festival.

In the piano concerto class Monday evening, no marks were announced as 17 entrants made it necessary to split the class into A, B and C groups. The second group will be heard this evening at Newcombe Auditorium starting at 7 p.m. and the third, Wednesday. Such sessions are well worth the attention of any concert-goer and certainly worth 10 times the 50 cent admission charge.

Jane MacKenzie, soprano, already several times a winner, topped the concert group class with a program that consisted of songs by Delius, Argento and distinguished Victoria resident, Bernard Naylor. The outstanding performance was shared at the piano by Philip Tillotson. The total mark for the three pieces was 265.

Second with 261 was Susan Westmacott. But all eight singers received warm praise mixed with advice and some criticism. "Victoria should be very proud of these exceptional young singers," Ms. Thomson commented. Also on the same program a lovely duet performance by singers Norma Selwood and Anne [illegible] impressive 179.

On Saturday night Jane MacKenzie was the winner of the female oratorio class with 89 marks, Susan Word McDonald and Susan Westmacott being tied for second place with 87. Ms. Thomson had considerable difficulty in judging two very fine ladies' choirs—Victoria's A Cappella Singers and the Alex Murray Singers from Richmond.

The latter group won by one mark (177), A. Capella receiving 176. The mainland group also won the new Mary Wood Memorial Award.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Blake Allan imposed a six-month sentence on a 28-year-old Kelowna man who pleaded guilty Monday in Victoria provincial court to attempting to deal with a forged prescripton.

David Stephen Kozdrowski pleaded guilty to the charge and was given the jail term, 12 months' probation and ordered not to associate with known drug users.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the court Kozdrowski tried to fill a prescripton at the Shoppers Drug Mart at 3104 Shelbourne on April 22 with a written prescription signed by a Dr. C. Morin. The clerk became suspicious, Mulligan said, and had the prescription checked.

Mulligan listed a criminal history for Kozdrowski which included break-ins in Kelowna in 1973 and Penticton in 1975, convictions for possession of a restricted drug for the purposes of trafficking in 1974 in Penticton and uttering forged documents in Kelowna in 1975.

Kozdrowski received a suspended sentence for the first break-in and 45 days for the second. He was sentenced to one year in jail on the trafficking charge and 18 months on the uttering conviction.

★ ★ ★

Court was told Kapitan wrote a $40 cheque to the National Trust Company in Victoria on April 1 as well as $25 and $55 cheques to the Greenwood Motor Hotel in Port Alberni on April 5 and 6. The other false pretence charge was for a March 10, 1975, cheque for $25 in Delta.

Kapitan obtained lodgings at the Jolly Knight Motel at 246 Gorge Road between March 31 and April 4 and wrote a worthless cheque for $33.60.

Mulligan said Kapitan had a lengthy criminal record dating back to 1949 but that there was a gap between 1964 and 1973.

The 30 days he was serving was for an offence in March.

A 33-year-old man has been remanded in custody until Wednesday for a pyschiatric examination after being charged with four counts of gross indecency.

Gary Smith Larson, of 729 Violet, was charged with the counts following an April 23 incident in Saanich involving two children, aged four and six.

Larson at first wanted to plead guilty to the charges but changeed his mind after speaking to legal aid lawyer Scott Marshall, who asked for a remand for election and possible bail hearing Wednesday.

Two men who pleaded guilty to taking nine blankets from a truck in downtown Victoria on Monday morning were given suspended sentences and ordered by Allan to perform 50 hours of community service work each.

Stephen Gregory Bell, 20, of no fixed address, and Paul Steven Gregory Hubner, 17, of 1096 Esquimalt Road, were charged with theft under $200 and possession of stolen property after they were checked in an alleyway in the 700 block Johnson at about 8:40 a.m.

They told police they took the blankets, valued at $90, from a truck belonging to Continental Home Supply Ltd., 716 Johnson, in order to keep warm. They said they had been staying in the alleyway for about two weeks.

MPs Voice Uranium Fears

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition MPs, expressing concern about reports of 200 tons of uranium disappearing in Europe in 1963, called Monday for a moratorium on uranium and nuclear reactor sales and emergency international inspection of nuclear facilities of Canada's customers.

At the same time James Gillies (PC—Toronto Don Valley) expressed concern about Canadian control, or lack of it, over a reactor sold years ago to Taiwan, an island with which Canada now has no relations.

The reactor is similar to the Canadian-supplied one used by India to produce plutonoium for a 1974 atomic explosion.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson fielded questions on the matter in the Commons from Gillies, Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) and Bill Jarvis (PC—Perth Wilmot).

He said if he finds that special international inspection by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) is needed, he will call for it.

Meanwhile, he told reporters preliminary investigation shows that none of the missing uranium was Canadian. Other government officials said it is suspected the uranium came from South Africa.

Woman New Gov't Watchdog

By [illegible] HUGHES

The deputy auditor-general of New Brunswick, has been recommended as B.C.'s first auditor-general, an independent watchdog of the province's finances.

Erma Morrison, 62, has the unanimous recommendation of the all-party legislative committee set up last year to choose the auditor-general, but the appointment must be approved by the legislature when it sits again.

She will be paid $52,000 a year, the same salary as a B.C. Supreme Court judge, nd is appointed for a six-year term starting Sept. 1.

The Auditor-General Act, passed in June, 1976, gives Morrison wide powers to act as a critic of government financial policies.

The auditor-general [illegible] access to all government financial records, including those crown corporations and any company of which the government owns more than 50 per cent.

Besides the annual report, the auditor-general can report to the legislature at any time "on a matter of primary importance or urgency."

The office of the auditor-general is designed to be independent from partisan politics and the six-year term is intended to remove the office from the effect of general elections.

Morrison was selected from a total of 56 applicants and was unanimously chosen from a short list of five finalists.

She is both a chartered accountant and a certified internal auditor.

She has been in the public service of New Brunswick since 1965 and has been deputy auditor-general since 1975.

All You See Is Grey . . .

By JOHN TWIGG

Canadian Press

REGINA — When you look to the horizon in all directions all you see is gray.

During the day the sunlight is so diffused it appears to glow, and it constantly feels like rain is imminent.

But when you look straight up, all you see is blue sky.

The cause is a combination of strong winds and no rain, and it becomes particularly bad when the ground is warm in contrast to a cold air mass moving overhead.

Bob Jacobs of the Regina weather office explained that those conditions combined on the weekend to "boil up" the air, sending dust clouds as high as 10,000 feet according to airline pilots.

Wind speeds then were up to 80 kilometres per hour (about 50 mph) and Monday at noon they were reported up to 59 kph.

The reduced visibility across the southern grain belt (roughly from Saskatoon south) to about one mile in blowing dust, with some communities such as Moose Jaw having visibility reduced to only three-quarters of a mile.

There has been virtually no precipitation since August, making it the driest winter since 1902, and virtually no snow run-off is creating water supply problems for many Prairie communities.

But above average rainfall in recent years has prevented dust storms and soil drifting, and 1962 was the last year when there was a serious dust problem.

The province's population has changed considerably since then and for many of the newcomers the dust storms are an eerie novelty that have become the main topic of conversation.

But people who have been here for a while are not worried.

"It's an amazing country," says Dick Nakamura, who has been here 21 years.

"One thing I've learned is that we could have all the makings of a serious drought and then in the next two weeks it could rain and there'd be no more problem."

Nakamura should know. He's the spokesman for the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration, the agency created in response to the calamity of the Thirties dust bowl.

Other farm experts point out that there has never yet been a crop failure in the early spring, but government agencies are taking more than the usual precautions.

Bill Harringer, manager of program implementation for the Department of Regional Economic Expansion, said meetings have been taking place with various departments of the three Prairie governments to discuss possible measures.

These, include re-instating the deep well program last used in 1962 to find water at depths greater than 100 feet, and expanding irrigation projects.

The Saskatchewan government for the last month has been helping farmers fill their dug-outs by supplying the equipment to pump water from distances up to several miles.

The crop situation so far is not serious because there is adequate moisture in summer-fallow fields (those not used last season to grow a crop).

And the loss of top soil has not yet become a widespread problem.

Ulster Strike Plan Fizzles

BELFAST (AP)—Workers poured into Northern Ireland's factories, shops and offices today in defiance of a general strike called by militant Protestants in an attempt to force the British army to open an offensive against the Irish Republican Army.

The Belfast Telegraph estimated at mid-morning that 80 to 90 per cent of Belfast's workers were on the job, and the turnout was nearly 100 per cent in Londonderry, which has a large Roman Catholic population. But it said about 60 per cent of the workers heeded the strike call in some mostly Protestant areas.

Strikers and their supporters shared the streets of Belfast with strengthened police forces on the lookout for any attempt to intimidate the workers. Although there was no interference with motorists and pedestrians going to work, threats were reported.

"We are getting reports of intimidation and calls for help," reported Ciaran McKeown, an official of the Peace People campaign. "Fear is spreading very rapidly, particularly among wives with children who have been threatened if their husbands no not heed the strike call."

A police spokesman said "many persons" have telephoned police to complain about intimidation. "So far we have not been able to apprehend anyone in connection with these complaints," he said.

Firebombs exploded in downtown Belfast stores early today, causing no casualties, and another bomb ripped up a section of track on the Belfast-Bangor rail line. Security officials said they do not know whether the bombs were the work of Protestant extremists or the IRA.

WOMAN KILLED BY HIT-RUN

An unidentified woman is dead and a seven-year-old boy unconscious after separate hit and run accidents in Greater Victoria Monday.

Victoria police said the woman — a native Indian between 30 and 40 — was struck by a car at Johnson and Broad at 11:05 p.m.

She carried no identification and died in Victoria General Hospital three hours later.

Colwood RCMP said Danny Jones, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jones, of 888A Attree, was hit by a pickup truck in the 2800-block Jacklin about 12:30 p.m.

The boy was taken to Victoria General where he is unconscious and in fair condition.

City police said the woman was walking across Johnson at a crosswalk. One vehicle had stopped to let her pass when another auto braked but skidded into her.

Witnesses describe the car as a dark blue or black Mercury or Meteor, either a 1964 or 1965 model. It is believed to have been driven by a male.

The woman, who wore glasses, was dressed in brown shoes, purple socks, a green-patterned shirt, a white sweater blouse, blue jeans and a light blue ski jacket.

Anyone who saw the woman earlier in the evening or who witnessed the accident is asked to contact city police at 384-4111.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said the Jones boy was returning to Langford elementary after his lunch break when he saw two dogs fighting.

The boy apparently decided to separate the dogs and got part way across when he was struck by the truck.

Three children aged 5, 7 and 8 saw the accident and told police the truck was a blue pickup with a white canopy or camper on the back.

The boy was tossed through the air and ended up on the sidewalk. Police found the boy's shoes in the middle of the road about 70 feet from where he landed.

Outlaw Officer Strike, Ferry Corp. Asks LRB

By MIKE HUGHES

Times Staff

The B.C. Ferry Corp. has moved to prevent any interruption of service by asking the provincial Labor Relations Board to declare a strike vote by ferry officers illegal.

The officers served 72-hour strike notice Monday and are poised to strike at 10 a.m. Thursday, cutting off service between Vancouver Island and the Mainland.

The corporation said in a news release Monday it will ask the LRB to declare the strike vote illegal as well as any action which takes place as a result of the vote.

The legality of the officers' strike will be discussed at a meeting Wednesday attended by representatives of the board, the ferry corporation and the B.C. Government Employees Union.

LRB chairman Paul Weiler said today discussion at the meeting will not centre only on the legality but will include all the outstanding issues in dispute between the two parties.

He said efforts will be made to point out the duty of both parties to bargain as well as the alternatives to bargaining which would include a strike.

Weiler said the meeting had been arranged prior to the release of the strike vote results on Friday. The officers voted 89 per cent to walk out.

As far as the LRB's opinion of the legality of the officer's strike vote following a recent certification decision by the Board, Weiler said the board members had analysed the matter but would await comments by the parties involved.

PORTABLE SECURITY U.S.-CANADA GOAL

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Health Minister Marc Lalonde said today he hopes to get U.S. agreement this year for a plan that would allow Canadian and U.S. citizens to carry various social security benefits with them when they move from one country to the other.

He told a news conference that there was a "quite positive" U.S. response to the idea which he discussed with Joseph Califano, his U.S. counterpart.

There were 300,000 Canadians and Americans who have earned social security benefits in both countries who would be affected by such arrangements, Lalonde said.

He had discussed the possibility of similar agreements during visits to Britain and France.

The benefits that could in effect be carried from one country to the other might include old-age pensions, disability payments, unemployment insurance benefits and workers' compensation.

Bomber Slams Houses, Five People Killed

HUNTINGDON, England (UPI) — A Royal Air Force Canberra plane crashed into a row of eight houses in the nearby village of Hartford today, setting them on fire and killing five persons, three of them young children. The crippled plane narrowly missed a crowded school.

At least five other persons were injured, including one child, a hospital spokesman said.

An air force spokesman said two crewmen and three infants died in the crash of the Canberra — a bomber converted into a photo-reconnaissance plane.

The plane crashed two miles short of its airfield 60 miles north of London.

Witnesses said the pilot appeared desperately trying to steer clear of a school only 50 yards from the crash site.

LOW-CALIBRE DENTISTRY

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—To end the tormenting pain of a toothache, an Uruguayan farmer shot awty the tooth with a .22-calibre pistol.

Hospital officials in Salto, 300 miles northwest of Montevideo, said Ernesto Erosa, 29, was recovering from the gunshot that not only demolished his tooth but also his gums, his lower lip, and jaw.

Misinterpreted, Says Davis

Energy Minister Jack Davis said Monday remarks he made during a February meeting with Washington State officials on the location of an oil port have been misinterpreted.

The minister earlier in the day said he did not remember making the controversial statement attributed to him in a transcript of the day long meeting, but said later he had misunderstood reporters' questions at the time of the original interview.

Davis was quoted in the transcript of the meeting as saying if he were an oil company he would prefer an oil port at Kitimat to the Puget Sound area, because Kitimat is sparsely populated with only a few Indian bands and the Puget Sound is highly developed with valuable properties.

The minister said he was pointing out the obvious to the oil companies—that the measurable damage from an oil spill is much greater in the Puget Sound than in Kitimat.

"But that was not at all to say that the damage up north was unimportant," he said.

"I certainly wasn't saying to heck with the Indians.

"What I was saying is that if we have an oil spill way off somewhere but close to the most important herring spawning grounds, those environmental values are difficult to express in dollar terms."

Davis said that in an area such as the Puget Sound, residents could tote up the cost of an oil spill by how much it affects tourist or recreational business, he said.

The minister said he was trying to tell the oil companies that because the dollar value of the environmental concerns in the north were difficult to add up "that's really where the government has to be concerned and to move in."

"There is no one there (in the Kitimat-Douglas Channel area) to quantify the environmental damage," Davis said, because there are only a few locations along the channel where there are Indian bands.

By AL FORREST

Times Staff

British Columbia is developing technology that will enable some cities to obtain their total electricity supply by burning waste wood, B.C. Council of Forest Industries president Don Lanskail said today.

"There is enough waste wood in the area ot supply all the electrical needs of Prince George, for example," he said.

"Cities on Vancouver Island also could benefit from this type of development."

Lanskail was elaborating on an announcement by provincial Transport Minister Jack Davis that B.C. will discuss energy developments in the forest industry with the National Energy Board next week.

Davis said energy will soon come from waste wood that at present is being dumped into rivers.

Lanskail said programs to convert waste wood to energy have a top priority in 1977 for the forest industry in British Columbia.

"We have made some progress already and I am very excited about the potential. What we have to do now is bring the costs in line so the many small sawmills across the province can afford this type of conversion."

Waste wood could be used for a number of projects but mainly to burn in thermal plants creating electricity. The idea is not new but, with encouragement and possible funding from Ottawa, the pace of development will be increased.

"I would expect to see a widespread conversion to waste wood burners within a decade," Lanskail said.

"This would not put B.C. Hydro out of business. It would simply provide alternative sources of electricity and put waste products to constructive use."

Already under way is a $13 million steam power boiler at the British Columbia Forest Products pulp mill at Crofton. When completed in mid-1978, the boiler will burn 250,000 units of waste wood, which is currently being disposed of as land fill and is regarded as a potential pollution problem.

The wood waste will replace 420,000 barrels of oil, which is more than half the oil currently being used to produce steam from the Crofton mill. Conservation of petroleum resources is a major aim of the joint B.C.-Ottawa program.

The council is studying similar developments in Oregon.

The waste-wood project is one of a number of conservation programs being studied by B.C. Energy Commission along with B.C. Hydro.

Hydro also is developing a program to encourage the upgrading of insulation in homes and buildings.

Car Thefts on Rise

900 Were Reported Last Year With Losses of Over $100,000

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

So you left your car unlocked while you just popped into the corner grocery.

And you never lock your car when it's right outside your house, or in your driveway.

Last year more than $100,000 in goods was stolen from cars in 900 individual thefts — some from unlocked and many from locked cars.

In the first three months of this year there were 240 thefts from cars. Value of the articles taken is $22,000.

"This type of crime is definitely on the upswing," said Sgt. Robert Newton. "I would say it is increasing by about three per cent a year."

Unlike the United States where theft of citizen band radios has become the biggest single object of larceny, thieves here concentrate on tape decks, he said.

"There are many vehicles with CB radios, but for some reason thieves instead go after tape decks," he said.

Tape decks are easier to peddle, he said.

"Most car owners don't keep a record of the serial numbers of their tape decks," he said. "So it is difficult to prove they are stolen goods."

"It's amazing the number of people who don't lock their cars," Newton said.

Some thieves are skilled at getting into a car with the help of wire cloth hanger through a window edge. And, of course, anybody can smash a side vent window.

"But keeping doors locked would help," Newton said. "It takes a little longer for a thief to break into a locked car. The noise also attracts attention."

Insurance agents said there has been no increase in insurance rates for thefts from cars.

Most of the thefts are covered in home fire insurance policies, insurance agent John McTavish said.

"Some companies won't cover a theft from a car left unlocked," he said. "It must not only be locked but there must be evidence of a break-in." He said other companies will cover articles stolen from cars, whether locked or not, but exclude radios and tape decks.

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. does not insure personal belongings stolen from a car. These would include cameras, clothing and fishing rods.

But ICBC covers tape decks which have been installed at the factory or custom installed, as well as other items such as spare tires, tool kits, jack and safety kit.

"If a driver installs his own tape deck, he can't claim anything if it is stolen," an ICBC spokesman explained.

"But most of these items are covered under home insurance fire policies," he said.

TOWN TALK

Mackin in turn has moved into government as a public relations man with the health education and information services section of the health ministry.

Both took up their new duties Monday.

When you have a big meeting with several legalities to be tidied up, motions to be made and seconded, how do you make sure nothing is missed?

You write a script — and that's exactly what members of the board at Victoria General Hospital had in their hands for its recent annual meeting.

Alas, perhaps the script syndrome doesn't sit well with those who aren't worrying about details. There were numerous revisions in the script and in the end, three board members were voted out of office.

That fence surrounding the long-established rose garden in Beacon Hill Park, by the sundial, doesn't signify some dark plot by the city parks department to deny access to rose lovers.

Parks administrator Cliff Bate explains that the grass in the area was worn pretty thin during the unusually dry winter. It has been re-turfed, and the fence is to allow the grass a chance to establish itself before another summer of heavy use.

The Empress was passed over, a fact that doesn't worry manager Ted Balderson. He says auto travellers using such guides are more interested in price than stars. And besides, the larger Canadian Automobile Association guide gives the Empress four stars out of a possible five. There are no five-star ratings in Victoria, he said.

Victoria manager Steve Borbola said several hundred declarations were processed. It wasn't quite as hectic as last year, but filing was more confusing to the public.

Nature Tours Set

Conducted nature tours will be held for the first time at Witty's Lagoon Capital Regional park during the summer months.

Park administrator Jack Kanhoffen said the walks have been made possible by an LIP grant enabling the CRD to hire a park naturalist for May, June and July.

Robert Rompen, a second-year biology and botany student at the University of Victoria, will explain to visitors why the lagoon is such a unique place for plants and animals.

Kanhoffen said the upper storey of the old cabin facing Sitting Lady Falls in the park will be turned into a nature house where natural history exhibits will be displayed.

He said the naturalist will be at the park five days a week and Saturdays as well during the summer.

Suites In Old School?

The city-owned Beacon Hill School on Douglas is to be offered for sale to developers interested in converting the building to apartment accommodation.

A recommendation to that effect from land commissioner Ken Wilkins was endorsed today by Victoria's land management committee.

In his report to aldermen, Wilkins noted that the old school is in good structural condition, and could be converted relatively easily into at least five suites.

He said several individuals and groups have already expressed interest in purchasing the property.

$139,000 For Road Closures

Traffic will be ousted from two roads in the Springridge-Fernwood area, under spending proposals recommended today by Victoria's neighborhood improvement committee.

The projects are the closure of Gladstone west of Fernwood and of Pembroke west of Fernwood. The capital costs involved, totalling $139,000 for engineering and parks work, will be found from the $1 million Neighborhood Improvement Program fund for Springridge.

The committee also recommended that negotiations be conducted with Greater Victoria school board on cost-sharing for a third period — the closure of Queens at Chambers, for which the preliminary cost estimate is $39,400.

Disband, Says Cass

The Greater Victoria inter-municipal committee should be disbanded if it doesn't function better than it does now, says Saanich Ald. Ian Cass.

A member of the inter-municipal committee since January, Cass said it took 40 minutes to get a quorum at the first meeting he attended, which turned out to be a "nothing" meeting." The second meeting was concerned only with grants to organizations.

Cass said he intends to enlist Saanich council's support in strengthening the intermunicipal committee, which he considers should be co-ordinating, resolving traffic and planning problems and standardizing protective services.

No Ferris Wheel on Highway

Royal Oak residents won a partial victory Monday when Saanich council voted not to allow a ferris wheel and coin-slot machines as part of a "coney Island" on the Pat Bay Highway near Vanalman.

Residents crammed the council chamber for the first session since night council meetings were reinstated to protest an application by Doug Webb of Fun City Attractions Ltd. to build an amusement park on the site.

Aldermen did, however, vote to allow Webb a business licence for bumper and mini cars.

In deference to the neighbors, Webb said, he had already agreed not to erect the ferris wheel.

Municipal solicitor Doug Patterson warned that refusing Webb a licence for the bumper and mini cars could result in legal action against the municipality because the site is zoned for outdoor recreation.

It was Patterson's opinion that coin-slot machines did not come into the outdoor recreation category.

Mayor Ed Lum had to warn the residents on occasion that he would clear the chamber if their protest did not remain orderly.

Richard Gauthier, president of the Royal Oak and District Ratepayers' Association, said an amusement park would lead to the selling of dope and noise pollution and attract undesirable elements.

Asked by Ald. John Mika what future attractions he planned, Webb said, "We definitely want to be a good citizen in this area. We certainly do not want to upset our neighbors."

Webb said he had had amusement park experience in Tokyo and Dallas and intends to make the Pat Bay one a family centre.

He said future plans call for children's slides, a synthetic ski slope, skateboard track, pony rides, a miniature train, outdoor roller skating and other attractions.

Council's finance and legislative committee will discuss what policing is needed and what restriction of hourse is required while the lands, planning and housing committee will study outdoor recreation zoning to see if it should be adjusted to provide better control.

SAANICH TO HOLD HEARING

Office-Retail Building Eyed

A public hearing will be held later this month on a land-use contract between Saanich and Aske Construction for a combined office-retail complex at Cedar Hill and Garnet.

The complex is to be built adjacent to the McKenzie Mall by Aske Construction.

A two-storey building, comprising 24,586 square feet, is planned for the 1.19-acre site. Two-thirds of the building will be for retail outlets. Sixty-five per cent of the parking will be underground.

In a report at Monday's council meeting, municipal planner Gil Laurenson recommended the project "as it satisfies the recommendations of the Ward and Associates' report to improve the municipality's financial situation and it also fits within the framework of the development of a regional centre in this area."

A land-use contract for a senior citizen housing complex at Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Road will also go to public hearing.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church plans to build a three-storey building of three storeys plus basement on the 1.7-acre site. The building will have four wings and a central service area.

There will be 62 suites. Fifty will be single rooms, four will be doubles and eight will be single rooms for handicapped people.

The central service area will contain a lounge, a dining room and space for music, hobby, meeting, games and smoking rooms.

In other business on Monday the council also voted to hold a public hearing on an application by A. S. Bains Developments Ltd. to build a two-storey warehouse-office complex of about 31,000 square feet at 3318 Oak.

A public hearing will also be held on an application by Jim Duncan to construct a 19-suite apartment building on the corner of Inverness and Glasgow. The building would contain 16 one-bedroom units and three two-bedroom units.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me the name and address of the studio that films the program Emergency? A.M.

A. Write to Universal City Studios, Los Angeles, Calif.

Q: I have a rather ancient print depicting Cupid and Phyche, in color, and hand-signed by a "Bouguereau." Can you throw a light on the origin? — F.R.S.

A: William (Adolphe) Bouguereau (1825-1905) is described as the "most revered French academic painter of his day" in The Thames and Hudson Encyclopaedia of the Arts. One of the works attributed to Bouguereau is L'Amour et Psyche, according to one art directory.

Three-Point Gain In TSE Trading

Industrial products rose 10.92 to 907.27, financial services 1.99 to 873.42 and oil and gas issues 1.05 to 1,101.12. Metals and minerals dropped 8.38 to 1,106.03.

Pipeline stocks led the four gainers among the other 10 groups within the 14-unit index, while communications and media issues were the biggest of the six losers.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. totalled 1.51 million shares compared with 902,000 at the same time Monday.

Pine Point Mines gained ½ to $34, Bethlehem Copper A ⅜ to $12½ and Dome Mines ¼ to $51½. Preston Mines was down ¼ to $15 and United Siscoe ⅛ to $6½.

Francana Oil and Gas rose ½ to $7¼, Asamera Oil ½ to $13 and Total Petroleum North America ¼ to $8. Decca Resources dropped ⅜ to $7¼ and Alminex ⅛ to $8⅜.

Analysts said buying was encouraged by the recent steadiness of the market in the face of signs that the Federal Reserve had begun to tighten credit.

RCA, which said it expects record second-quarter profits, gained ⅜ to 30¼.

New York

Gainers outnumbered losers by better than a 2-to-1 margin and the 2 p.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.65 at 934.87, after a 4.32-point rise on Monday.

Montreal

AT MONTREAL prices were fractionally higher in light to moderate afternoon trading.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 226,100 shares, compared with 192,400 shares traded up to the same time Monday.

Alcan Aluminium was up ⅛ at $30¼, Total Petroleum ¼ at $8, Zeller's Ltd. 10 cents at $4.15, Canadian Pacific Ltd. ¼ at $17½ and Walker A ⅛ at $26½. MICC Investments was off ½ at $9¼ and Royal Trust A ⅜ at $15.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices were moderately lower near the close of light trading on the London stock market today. The Financial Times index was down 2.8 to 427.9 an hour before the close. Leading industrials drifted lower, while oil issues were mixed. Mining stocks were mixed to higher.

PURCHASING AGENT

An immediate requirement exists for an experienced purchasing agent with a history of successful performance and demonstrated organizing ability. The successful applicant may come from industrial field but knowledge of hospital systems and equipment is desirable. The initial task entails set-up of a project purchasing office and the procurement of a large quantity of furnishings and equipment to a specified critical path schedule. Salary open but commensurate with experience and responsibility.

Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Old crop soybean futures were up 45 cents a bushel on the Board of Trade today but new crop months were not quite so strong.

The outgoing May soybean contract thus picked up exactly where it had stopped last Friday and after a one day's respite because of computer problems rose the allowable daily limit. The July option followed but then both eased under profit-taking. The outgoing May options in meal and oil have no trading limits in the month they expire and May meal rose $20 a ton while oil was up some 125 points. Both also retreated later.

The demand for commodities in the complex was linked with several facts. Prices were higher for soybeans and products in Europe before the opening and soybean export inspections last week were sharply higher than the previous week. In addition, Brazil raised the export tax on soybeans to 12 per cent.

As limits were reached in the complex, some trade did develop and prices came off. New crop months were not quite so active and, in fact, distant meal prices were barely steady.
